ONE DEAD IN QUINCY WRECK

One man was killed and more than a score of workmen were injured when an electric car collided with a van at the entrance to the yards of the Fore River Shipbuilding Company in Quincy early today. Twelve of the injured were badly hurt.

The dead man is Warren B. Hollis of Commercial street, Weymouth, driver of the van. He was hurled from his seat and struck against the fender. He was picked up unconscious and taken to the Quincy Hospital, where he died at 12:20 p. m.

The car was crowded with workmen on their way to the yards. As it took the switch leading into the yards it struck a van or large enclosing eleven employes of the Fore River Company on their way from Braintree.

The barge was overturned and the occupants and driver thrown in all directions. All the occupants of the barge and most of those on the electric car were cut by flying glass and bruised.

Injured Men Taken Home.

Physicians from Quincy and Braintree were summoned, and all but one of the injured were taken to their homes. The majority of those on the car were able to go to their work after their cuts had been treated.

The others most seriously injured, all but two employes of the Fore River company, were:

Otis Hall, of Bakers avenue, Weymouth, son of the driver, suffering from bruises and shock.

Robert Donnelley, Washington street, Weymouth, assistant foreman, cut and bruised.

Aubrey Williams, Sterling street, Weymouth, draughtsman, cut and bruised.

David Godfrey, Sterling street, Weymouth, bruised and cut by flying glass.

James Hollingwood, Liberty street, East Braintree, foreman, cut and bruised.

Chestman Keene, Front street, Weymouth, cut and bruised.

William Keene, same address, machinist, cut and bruised.

John McNeil, Washington street, Weymouth, boss carpenter, cut and bruised.

Barge Completely Wrecked.

Melville Wood, Walnut avenue, East Braintree, draughtsman, bruised and cut.

Doctors Middleton and Jones of Quincy and Pollock of Weymouth responded to the call for medical aid and treated the victims of the accident on the spot.

The electric car struck the barge with such force as to wreck it. The horses broke away and ran for a half mile before they were caught.

The motorman of the car, B. W. Litchfield, was cut by broken glass, but not seriously hurt. Practically every one of the occupants of the car was cut by the flying glass from the broken windows and the majority were bruised.

BRILLIANT THRONG AT INAUGURAL

Eugene N. Foss was inaugurated Governor of Massachusetts at noon to-day. He was sworn into office by Allen T. Treadway, president of the Senate, amid a brilliant gathering in the House of Representatives.

As he took the oath of office at the Speaker's rostrum he faced the members of the Legislature of 1911, the Justices of the Supreme and Superior Courts, former Governors Guild and Bates, the members of the outgoing military staff, all of a throng crowded seats on the floor of the hall, and the invited guests in the galleries. These included Mrs. Foss, the Governor's twin daughters, Helen and Esther, his father and mother, and his brother, Congressman Edmund Foss of Illinois.

Governor Draper was not present.

The Senate and House convened for the inaugural ceremonies at 11 o'clock. They met in their respective chambers and at once went into joint session in the House Chamber. A joint committee was appointed to canvass the vote of the State at the election, and formally reported Eugene N. Foss elected Governor and Louis A. Frothingham Lieutenant-Governor.

Notified of Election.

Committees were then dispatched to notify the Governor and Lieutenant-Governor of their election and conduct them to the House Chamber.

Governor Foss an Lieutenant Governor Frothingham received an ovation when they returned with the committees. Every member of the Legislature rose to his feet and the spectators crowded in the galleries rose and burst into a storm of cheering and hand-clapping.

Secretary of State Olin proclaimed Eugene N. Foss Governor and Louis A. Frothingham Lieutenant Governor.

President of the Senate Treadway then presided at the joint session, administered the oath of office to the Governor and Lieutenant Governor, and as the last words were spoken the boom of the guns on the Common announced that a new Governor and a new Lieutenant Governor had been inducted to office.

Ex-Governor Brackett Present.

On the committee appointed to notify Governor Foss and Lieutenant-Governor Frothingham of their election were Senators Mailhen of Natick, Tolman of Gloucester, and Curley of Boston; Representatives Ellis of Newton, Tufts of Waltham, Stone of Worcester, Coggeswell of Lynn, Murray of Hyde Park, O'Neil of Boston, Shannan of Becket and Rogue of Lynn.

At 11.25 o'clock former Governors Guild and Bates were escorted into the House Chamber and shown to seats on the Speaker's rostrum. At 11.50 former Governor John Quincy Adams Brackett, the oldest living ex-Governor, arrived in the House chamber. He took his seat beside the other two amid great applause.

Governor Foss reached the State House

ONE DEAD IN COLLEGE FIRE

GRANBY, Que., Jan. 5.—With the temperature 20 degrees below zero, forty students in St. Joseph's College, a Roman Catholic institution, were routed from their beds early to-day by a fire which destroyed the main building. One of the teachers jumped from a third-story window and was fatally injured.

It is feared that there may be other casualties revealed by examination of the ruins, as several of the students are missing.

Those who escaped were rescued with the greatest difficulty, and all of them suffered severely from cold and exposure before they were carried to places of safety.

A disaster of much greater proportions would have followed had the fire occurred two days later, when the holiday vacations end. Most of the 330 students normally housed in the building are still at their homes.

WOMAN'S FALL STARTS $300 FIRE

Mrs. Mary Swalsky, while standing on a soap box cleaning shelves in her grocery store at No. 80 Essex street, Chelsea, to-day, lost her balance and fell on a showcase which contained cigars and matches. Matches were ignited when she struck the showcase, causing a fire that did $300 damage.

SON OF WOMAN FOUND DEAD IS ARRESTED

DANVILLE, Ky., Jan. 5.—Clayton Carter, thirty years old, is under arrest to-day following the finding of the dead body of his mother, Mrs. Nancy Carter, in her home at Junction City, near here. She had been shot in the side with a shot gun.

GIRL ELOPES FROM COLLEGE

Miss Marjorie W. Fox, eighteen-year-old daughter of Charles K. Fox of Haverhill, one of the richest shoe manufacturers of New England, was eloped from Simmons College with Karl H. Pitcher, twenty years old, son of Dr. Herbert Pitcher, a wealthy Haverhill physician.

Miss Fox left her suite in South Hall at Simmons yesterday, met Pitcher at the Parker House and the two proceeded to Nashua, N. H., where they were married by Rev. Dr. Baker of the Congregational Church.

They returned to the Parker House in the afternoon and were there to-day awaiting the forgiveness of the bride's parents. Pitcher has been forgiven by his father, who says he is "pleased," said Pitcher to-day at the Parker House. "We are to wait here until Miss Fox's father hears from her family. We confidently expect to be forgiven for what we have done."

When the announcement of the elopement was made at Simmons College and among the many couple's friends in Haverhill there was much surprise, for although close friends knew that the two were engaged, they never had the least idea that a marriage was to unite them so soon.

The girl bride is the daughter of C. K. Fox, who has offices in Lincoln street, Boston, and a factory at Haverhill. He is rated the girl has fabulous money to lavish upon her friends at college. Naturally she has been a favorite.

In Haverhill, where she has grown up, she has scores of friends and has always moved in the younger society set.

Pitcher's father is wealthy, too. He plans to go to Haverhill and will in all probability go into the shoe business. He is a graduate of Dartmouth College, 1910.

$100,000 FIRE AT MT. HERMON

NORTHFIELD, Jan. 5.—Crossy Hall, the largest dormitory at the Mt. Hermon boys' school at Mt. Hermon, was destroyed by fire shortly after 10 o'clock to-day. The loss will be $100,000.

To-day was the first day of the Winter term at the school and only a few of the students had returned. Many of them were in the building when the fire was discovered, but made their escape. No one was hurt.

The building destroyed was a four-story brick structure. It cost $75,000 to build, but additions and repairs bring the loss up to an even $100,000.

Additional loss is suffered by the students. About 100 boys were quartered in Crossly. All of them had left their effects in their rooms when they went away for the Christmas holidays.

The fire started in a pile of rubbish in one corner of the basement. A match was dropped into this rubbish by some of the cleaners who had been at work in the building. It was unnoticed until that corner of the building was a mass of flames.

There is no fire department at the school and none in Northfield, the nearest town. With the majority of the students away no attempt was made to check the flames. The building was a crumbled mass of ruins by noontime.

The fire will not interrupt the term at the school. Students will by taken care of in other buildings. Efforts will be made at once to secure funds for a new building. Crossly Hall was given to the school by Frank Crossly, an Englishman, a great admirer of Moody. The school is a part of the Moody institution.

WHOLE TOWN IN KENTUCKY BURNED

LONDON, Ky., Jan. 5.—The mining town of Pittsburg, Ky., was destroyed by fire early to-day. The loss is $35,000. It is a town of 500 inhabitants.

A Want Advt. is the road to fortune.

FULL TEXT GOVERNOR'S MESSAGE

Governor Eugene Noble Foss this afternoon at 1 o'clock delivered his first message to the Great and General Court. It is the most remarkable message ever delivered by a Governor of Massachusetts. It is a strong, manly, courageous handling of the vital questions that deeply concern the people of this Commonwealth.

The message is clear and concise. There are no evasions and no attempt upon the Governor's part to disguise his meaning by complicated writing.

Here are some of the vigorous sentences to be found in the great document:

The people, in all sections of the country, have lost confidence in many of their public servants.

Government of the people is coming to be only a name. Representatives of the monopolistic interests have usurped the prerogatives of the people.

The first step is to abolish the boss and all of his agencies; the caucus, the nominating convention and all political machinery which intervenes between the people and their government.

All candidates for public office without exception must be chosen by the people through the direct primary.

To the direct primary must be joined the power of recall; so that any public servant who proves recreant to his trust may be immediately dismissed.

The incorporation of the Boston Holding Company was special legislation in the interest of privilege. I regard it as one of the most flagrant examples of pernicious legislation enacted in recent years. It legalized some of the most objectionable corporate practices.

In respect to criminal cases, it is, in my judgment, outrageous that a suspected person must now remain imprisoned for a long period before a hearing can be given and his right determined. This violates all public sense of justice and should be remedied.

I now advise the abolition of the Railroad Commission, the Gas and Electric Light Commission, the Boat on Transit Commission, which includes the supervision of the telephone and telegraph companies, and in their place I recommend the creation of a Public Utilities Board of five members.

Our first duty, as I see it, is to create a Greater Boston by the consideration of all the towns and cities within a radius of at least ten miles, and possibly more. This union should be not merely a commercial, but also a political one.

I recommend that the General Court prohibit the hiring of carriages to transport voters to the polls in any State, city or town election, except such as may be provided by the State for the use of the disabled. If it be not constitutional to compel citizens to do their civic duty, Massachusetts ought to take the lead in such wise legislation by making it so.

I also recommend that legislation be enacted calling for the popular nomination of United States Senators.

I confidently expect that this Legislature will have the courage to obey the manifest will of the people and elect a Senator, irrespective of party, who represents the progressive platform for which the majority of the people voted.

I strongly urge you to ratify the Federal income tax amendment and memorialize Congress upon the remaining points not enumerated. (Duties removed from all food products, raw materials on the free list, a reduction in duties on manufactured products, better trade relations with Canada.)

The old method of framing desired legislation behind closed doors, through legislative agents and the lobby, should be entirely discontinued. There is no occasion for secrecy, but on the contrary for the greatest degree of publicity.

The use of money in our elections has become a great evil, for it amounts to a substantial denial of the privilege of a man of moderate means to aspire to many public offices in the Commonwealth.

TAFT MESSAGE ON RECLAMATION

WASHINGTON, Jan. 5.—President Taft to-day sent a message to the House on reclamation legislation. He said:

"The act of Congress approved June 17, 1902, set apart as a fund for the reclamation of arid lands the moneys received from the sale of public lands in certain of the States and territories except the five per cent. of the proceeds of the sale heretofore set aside by law for educational and other purposes.

"The receipts into the reclamation fund to June 30, 1909, were $58,439,408.93, and the estimated total receipts to June 30, 1910, are $65,714,170.00. The original reclamation fund of 16 has been estimated at $80,449,058.76, of which all but $6,241,168.76 has been allotted in several projects.

"On June 30, 1910, the net investment in reclamation works amounted to $53,781,102.86, of which $52,945,441.86 had on June 30, 1910, been expended in the primary projects.

"In addition there had been invested in secondary projects June 30, 1910, $587,390.71 in town-site developments, $450,149; in Indian irrigation, $198,704.21, and for general expenses, $78,511.44."

MISS PLIMPTON DEAD.

Miss Caroline S. Plimpton, one of the oldest retired public school teachers in Somerville, is dead at her home, No. 46 Laurel street, that city. She taught for thirty-five years in the old Bradow school, retiring twenty years ago. She also taught in the old Franklin school. The Rev. William H. Pearson, formerly pastor of the Somerville Unitarian Church, will conduct the funeral services at 2 p. m. Saturday. Burial will be at Mt. Auburn.

2,000 PERISH IN RUSSIAN QUAKE

TASHMEND, Asiatic Russia, Jan. 5.—Two thousand soldiers, accounted for relief work, were to-day rushed into the earthquake-stricken territory of Semiryetcheask, Turkestan, where fatal shocks are now reported to have been killed or wounded in the terrific and devastating tremors which lasted all day yesterday.

Practically 1,000 square miles of territory are said to have been ravaged, with whole towns wiped out and wide desolation in the steppes growing swiftly.

Reports from towns and villages on the edge of the death belt whither refugees fled in great numbers during the night, started to-day that conditions in the interior of the devastated zone are horrifying beyond description.

Fortified Towns in Ruins.

A big detachment of troops was ordered to hurry all possible speed from the Tashmend barracks towards Kyrnla. A fortified town of 22,000 inhabitants which is reported wholly in ruins.

At Kopal, a great section of the town lies in ruins to-day according to the meagre reports. Communication was practically cut off and from the interior of the earthquake zone no definite word can be had.

In the Sirks Desert, each of Kopal and upon the vast steppes stretching among the mountains, hundreds of nomadic Kirghistan tribes are said to have been swallowed up by the earth.

Many Refugees Drowned.

Scores of persons perished in Lake Issy-kul. When the earth began to rock many fled into boats upon the water, thinking themselves safe from falling buildings or cracks in the earth. However the surface of the lake became as violent that the boats were swamped and sank.

So great was the force of the tremor that mountains in the Kooing Ala Tau range were split open. The force of the shock was felt for hundreds of miles along the northern frontier of China. It is feared that an epidemic will follow the disaster.

Army medical men were commanded to accompany the relief corps which were sent with medical supplies into the stricken zone.

The fate of the soldiers in the barracks at Tyerny was in doubt to-day, the garrison there had been but recently strengthened. Fleet couriers were ordered to proceed with all possible haste towards Tyerny to-day and long provision trains were started in that direction.

DEMOCRAT TO FOLLOW ELKINS

WASHINGTON, Jan. 5.—Political friends and foes united to-day in paying tribute to Senator Stephen B. Elkins of West Virginia, who died at midnight at his home, No. 1625 K street, N. W.

As a result of the death of Senator Elkins, West Virginia, which has been represented in the United States Senate by Republicans for many years, will now be represented by two Democrats. The West Virginia Democrats at the recent election gained control of the Legislature and as it will soon be in session successors to both Senator Scott and Senator Elkins will be elected. Senator Elkins's term would not have expired until 1913.

It is understood that Governor Glasscock will not appoint a Senator to succeed Mr. Elkins but will wait until the Legislature convenes.

Funeral plans for the late Senator were not completed to-day, but it is understood that the body will be taken to his old home at Elkins, W. Va.

Though the Senator had been ill several months, his death was a shock to his friends.

He was conscious until half an hour before the end. His death came so peacefully that those about him hardly knew he had passed away.

"I do not expect to die," were the last words uttered before he lapsed into unconsciousness.

The direct cause of death was septic poisoning, a form of germ organism in the blood which finally affected the heart.

CALL MEETING OF BUILDING TRADES

Notice of a special session of the Building Trades Department of the Central Labor Union to-morrow night is being sent to all affiliated local unions in Greater Boston to-day, although the nature of the business to be acted on is a secret. The meeting will be held at No. 280 Harrison avenue, and every accredited delegate to the organization is urged to be present.

BRAZILIAN CITY AN ARMED CAMP

PARA, Brazil, Jan. 5.—This city is an armed camp to-day, with machine guns planted in the streets and the plazas filled with the temporary cantonments of regular soldiers who have been ordered here to quell revolutionary outbreaks. Five are dead and at least fifty are wounded as the result of a regiment of infantry charging a mob in the streets late yesterday, dispersing them with sweeps from their carbines and their sabres. Additional troops were rushed from Rio Janeiro to-day and heavy guards were placed about the federal buildings and rapid fire guns placed upon the roofs.

Several Brazilian men-of-war lie in the harbor and the navy to-day threatened to take sides with the revolutionists and bombard the city. Foreign merchants, fearing that the navy could be put into effect, weighed anchor and left the harbor, considering gunfire out and the authorities passed a proclamation declaring the city temporarily under martial law.

BETHEL CHURCH WAR IS DECIDED

The full bench of the Supreme Court has handed down a decision upholding the injunction granted by Judge Richardson of the Superior Court against moving the Bethel Church building from South Hingham to South Chatham, Cape Cod. When the building moving began certain pew holders applied for an injunction, and it was granted by Judge Richardson, after he had heard the case. Alonzo F. Cahoon appealed from this decision to the Supreme Court, but the highest judiciary in the State has now decided against him and in favor of the pewholders.

PLAISTED IS NOW MAINE GOVERNOR

AUGUSTA, Me., Jan. 5.—Frederick W. Plaisted of this city took the oath of office in the Hall of Representatives to-day and is now Governor of Maine, the first Democrat to hold the office in thirty years, or since the completion of the term of his father, the late General Hiram M. Plaisted.

Charles E. Johnson of Waterville, Democratic candidate for Governor of Maine in 1892 and again in 1895, a member of the State Board of Legal Examiners and one of the most prominent lawyers in Maine, will be the successor of United States Senator Eugene Hale on March 4. He was nominated on the first ballot at the Democratic caucus. As the Maine Legislature is safely Democratic, his nomination is equivalent to an election. He will be the first Democrat to represent Maine in the Senate since 1847.

Besides Mr. Johnson, the candidates for the senatorship nomination were Obadiah Gardiner of Rockland, who two years ago lacked about 7,000 votes of being elected Governor, and former Sheriff William M. Pennell of Portland, who at the September election was barely defeated for Congress by Asher C. Hinds, the national parliamentarian.

The result of the ballot was as follows: Whole number of votes cast, 105; necessary for choice, 53; Johnson, 67; Gardner, 21; Pennell, 17.

"UNCLE JOE" SAYS HE DANCED BOSTON TROT WHEN BOY

WASHINGTON, Jan. 5.—"All this talk about my faculty in learning the new dance—the Boston trot—makes me sick," said Speaker Cannon.

"Why, I learned to dance that forty years ago. I learned it when I learned dancing. I could do the Boston trot before I could waltz.

"I was much amused the other night at 'Bob' Wynne's house, when only Miss Ruth Wynne and myself were able to dance it. It is as easy as falling off a log. Here's the way it goes."

Then Uncle Joe stepped off the measure. "One, two, three—one, two, three.

"It is almost a waltz, anyhow, and you can sidestep, reverse or do any other stunt that you can in a waltz. The 'Boston trot' was old when I was new."

8 KILLED IN TRAIN WRECK

CAPE TOWN, South Africa, Jan. 5.—Eight passengers were killed and at least fifty others injured, some of them fatally, when an excursion train was derailed and plunged over an embankment near Caledon to-day. The train was crowded and as the cars tumbled up scores were caught beneath the wreckage.

BOSTON TRAIN IS WRECKED

PORTSMOUTH, N. H., Jan. 5.—Two hundred passengers on the Boston and Bangor express had a narrow escape from being buried into the Piscataqua River when the brake beam of the tender broke and derailed the locomotive a short distance east of the Portsmouth railroad station.

The train left Boston last night, and was bound for Bangor. The train was approaching the bridge over the Piscataqua River to Kittery, Me., when the accident happened. The breaking of the beam automatically applied the air brakes, and although the big locomotive was derailed the coaches, baggage and mail cars came to an abrupt stop but remained on the tracks.

How to Avoid Serious Kidney Troubles

Serious kidney or bladder disease often steals upon the unsuspecting before the real danger is discovered. For that reason prompt attention and care should be given to pain in the back, rheumatic pains in joints, frequent, scanty or painful urination, highly colored or scalding urine, pains in groin, dull pains in back of head, dizziness, irritability, all of which are sure symptoms of kidney or bladder trouble. The following prescription is highly recommended and should be used at once: "Half ounce Mistura compound, half ounce fluid extract Buchu, six ounces best gin." The ingredients can be had at any first-class drug store. Some prefer to mix the gin at a grocery. Dose—A teaspoonful to a tablespoonful to two teaspoonfuls after each meal and at bed time.

BOY FINDS CLEW IN POISON CASE

CUMBERLAND, Md., Jan. 5.—From an eight-year-old boy came a story to-day that makes the first break in the mystery in the death of Grace Elosser and her father, found lifeless, side by side, late Saturday, on the eve of their marriage. Harlan Norris, who lives near the Elosser home, is the boy.

This is how Harlan, a keen witted schoolboy, tells his story:

"My mother sent me on an errand up to Second street and Virginia avenue about 2:15 o'clock last Saturday. I have to go way past the Elosser house at First street and the avenue. Just as I got there somebody yelled. I looked, and Mrs. Elosser, the dead lady's mother, came running out. Then Mrs. Norris, the dead lady's sister, ran out too. She cried and asked a boy to run for a doctor and to get her husband. A lady across the street asked her what was the matter. Mrs. See said:

"'Something awful happened to Gracey.'

Both Held Glasses.

"Then ran up and looked through the open door. I could see the parlor. On the sofa I saw Miss Grace Elosser and a man. She had in her hand a wine glass, and he had in his the kind of a glass my mother uses to put up jelly in.

"I stayed around for a while, standing in the doorway, and then a doctor came. I don't know his name; but he was the first one. I saw him go in and take the glasses from their hands. Then I saw him pick up a bottle—I think it was a green one—from the parlor floor near the sofa. Then they closed the door and I had to go away."

This story reached Cumberland in a roundabout way from Baltimore, whence it had been sent by a woman friend of the lad's mother, Mrs. James Norris. Detectives at once began an examination of the boy. He told his story over and over again. He did not contradict himself.

Investigation cast doubt on some parts of the tale. He was not in the Elosser house. Mrs. Elosser and her married daughter, Mrs. See, did not run out screaming, and the former cried to a neighbor across First street, a Mrs. Hickman, that something awful had happened to Grace. They admit this and Mrs. Hickman corroborates them.

Room in Normal Condition.

For a time, perhaps, the front door lending directly into the parlor, may have been open. It is not entirely impossible that the lad might have seen dead hands clasping glasses.

But the first doctor to arrive was Dr. W. R. Reed, a reputable physician, who lives three blocks away, and when he got there he says, and so do the women, that the front door was closed.

The doctor declares that he found no glasses either in the hands of the dead persons or near them on the floor. In a normal condition. As to the bottle the boy says he saw, Dr. Reed declares that the bottle in sight at any time that afternoon was one of perfumery, which he got from the kitchen to revive Mrs. Elosser and her youngest daughter, May. They had both fainted.

Chief of Police Irvine is inclined to think the lad's story is true.

Not Suicide, Says Chief.

"I believe the boy," he said, "and I would be willing to make an arrest immediately if I had my way. I don't think this was suicide. I believe someone gave these young people poison in wine or lemonade, or that the glass Miss Grace Elosser drank from was afterward washed and made to look clean.

"Whether the youngster's story is true or false he will be placed upon the stand at the coroner's inquest, and the members of the Elosser family will have to testify, too.

"Physicians undoubtedly will say that the poison was taken from the contents of a bottle, because the mouths were not badly burned, and the glass might have been hastily removed immediately before or after death for, they say, the hands would instinctively clench after such a procedure. Lace handkerchiefs were found clenched.

Sisters Unfriendly.

A visit to Keyser, W. Va., where Charles Edward Twigg lived revealed that as late as last Tuesday, the Elosser sisters, Grace, whom Twigg was going to wed, and May, to who he had previously been devoted, were not on good terms.

"The only thing that spoils my happiness," Twigg told his mother and two men friends on that day, "is that May will not speak to Grace. But I hope they'll make up when Grace and I are married."

In Keyser was further evidence that Twigg had not contemplated suicide. He had just engaged apartments and had fitted them up for his bride. He had bought rattiest tickets to Florida, and, worried because the suit had not arrived at Keyser Saturday morning, came to Cumberland to send to Jay's ready made suit. That, in fact, was the reason for his visit in the afternoon to his swooning sweetheart.

UNCLE SAM WATCHING MEXICAN SITUATION

WASHINGTON, Jan. 5. Investigation by the Secret Service Bureau of the United States Department of Justice into "plots that American financiers are becoming interested in the outcome of Mexico and Central American revolutions never ceases. It is known that secret service agents are fully twenty-five men along the Mexican border since trouble broke out in that country, and that representatives of the Madero factions in Washington, as well as in other cities, have been under a nominal surveillance.

NEW YORK MAN A MINE; COUGHS UP 12 PEARLS

PITTSBURG, Jan. 5.—J. R. Thompson, a retired business man of Clifton Springs, N. Y., while eating oysters in a hotel, was seriously choked. It required the services of the waiter to restore him to his normal self, and then he produced the oysters, napkin and there were twelve pearls from the size of a pea to a shot. Five of the pearls are said to be valuable.

BASS TAKES OFFICE IN NEW HAMPSHIRE

CONCORD, N. H., Jan. 5.—Robert P. Bass, progressive Republican, was inaugurated as Governor of New Hampshire at noon today in the presence of the Legislature and distinguished guests from all parts of the State, assembled in the remodelled State House.

Governor Bass's inaugural message was short but thoroughly progressive in the measures he advocated.

He favored the election of the United States Senators by the people.

He favored election by the people of delegates to the national conventions.

Governor Bass condemned the buying of votes at elections and primaries, saying:

"Every possible step should be taken to put a stop to the buying of votes at the caucuses and at general elections. The contravention of this practice will surely undermine the very foundation of our government. I strongly urge you to take such action as will, in your judgment, put a stop to this evil.

Limit Candidates' Expenses.

"The expenditures of candidates and of political parties should be subject to reasonable limitation, and the purposes for which such expenditures may be incurred should be prescribed by law. Candidates for important offices and all political committees should be required to file a sworn public statement of their campaign receipts and expenditures before and after the primaries and general elections.

"All contributions by corporations for political purposes should be prohibited by law."

Governor Bass came out in favor of the income tax, saying:

"I recommend the ratification of the proposed amendment to the Federal Constitution authorized by Congress, whereby the National government is given authority to impose a tax on incomes.

Protection for workingmen and women injured or killed while at work in mills and factories is asked. Of this the message says:

"The new conditions attending the growth and development of our industrial enterprises make it desirable that the common law now in force relative to contributory negligence, the assumption of risk and the so-called fellow servant doctrine be largely modified by statute. Many States and the federal government have already taken such action.

Asks Early Action.

"I urge you to give this matter your early attention and to enact such legislation as will better protect our workingmen and women, and those dependent upon them, to the event of accidental death or injury while employed by public service corporations and in industrial establishments."

Discussing the liquor traffic Governor Bass favored continuation of local option with strong legal protection for those towns which are so dryed.

"The general policy of dealing with the liquor traffic is a matter for your consideration," says the message.

"If you determine to continue the present local option law, I recommend to your favorable consideration all such measures as will tend to restrict to a minimum the use of intoxicants. Such laws as vote for no license should be given the most effective legal protection which can be devised.

Close Saloons Primary Day.

"Provision should be made for closing all saloons on days when primaries are held."

Governor Bass declared that the laws bearing on child labor should be re-written. He recommends that the employment of children under sixteen years of age be restricted and that no children be allowed to work nights, saying:

"I recommend that the employment of children under sixteen years of age be limited to eight hours a day and that their employment at night be entirely prohibited."

Governor Bass declared that the time had come for corporations to get out of and stay out of political affairs in New Hampshire. He said:

"There is a universal demand on the part of the people of our State that corporations get out and keep out of politics. Heretofore, they have been in politics for their own selfish ends, and to a degree that was highly injurious to the interests of our citizens."

Illegal Railroad Rates.

He declared that illegal rates on the Boston & Maine are still in force and asked that the Legislature at once take steps to straighten out the whole railroad problem.

The most remarkable feature of his railroad discussion was his declaration that the State needs a public utilities commission with full power to make rates and regulate the railroads.

The Governor also declared the State should have a permanent tax commission with power to correct any inequalities of assessment all over the State and appraise and tax corporation property.

FR. RALEY TRANSFERRED.

Clergyman's Son Cured of Tuberculosis

To neglect a cold, bronchitis, lung trouble or Consumption is dangerous. We all know how prone people are to deny they have Consumption. It is a flattering disease, and the sufferer is filled with bright hopes of improvement. Call consumption by its own dread name—and then—take Eckman's Alterative, because it is effective in Tuberculosis. No one need doubt about it—there is plenty of evidence from live witnesses. Investigate the following:

Utica, N. Y.

Gentlemen:—Prior to February, 1908, I was treated in Rochester, N. Y., suffering with La Grippe which developed into Tuberculosis. My physician gave me one month to live. I was losing terrible night sweats and mid-day chills and losing flesh rapidly, having gone from 155 to 105 lbs. I coughed and raised continually and became so weak that walking a few feet exhausted me. On my return home my medical physician gave no little encouragement. Mr. Fritz Wise is a neighbor, heard of Eckman's Alterative and induced me to take it. The night sweats and chills disappeared, my cough became easier and gradually diminished, and in a few days I developed an appetite, the first in months. I am now in perfect health, back to 155 lbs. I feel certain that I owe my life to Eckman's Alterative."

(Signed) E. H. COWLES.

Corroborative: "I cannot end without saying appreciation of what your remedy has done for my son. It changed despair and gloom to hope and cheer weeks after he began taking it, and without any doubt in my mind it saved his life.

"I wish to add my endorsement to every word of his testimonial."

(Signed) REV. J. J. COWLES, Pastor Presbyterian Church.

Eckman's Alterative cures Bronchitis, Asthma, Hay Fever, Throat and Lung Affections. Sold by all druggists. Send for booklet telling of cures in your locality. Eckman Laboratory, Philadelphia, Pa., for additional evidence, proofs.

PUCCINI HOME, LAUDS FARRAR

LONDON, Jan. 5.—Giacomo Puccini, the composer, arrived in London today on his way to Milan. Speaking of his latest opera, "The Girl of the Golden West," he said: "Americans commented upon the fact that there were no American singers taking the chief rôles in an opera based on a purely American theme. But, although the opera deals with cowboys and cowgirls in the far West, there are no American singers quite able to take the leading rôles. They have some excellent singers over there, of course, in Geraldine Farrar, I think, is America's foremost singer, but she is neither powerful nor dramatic enough to take the rôle played by Emmy Destinn."

BRIDGEWATER BOY HONORED IN NAVY

WASHINGTON, Jan. 5.—Oswald Tuckerman Sing, a Bridgewater, Mass., boy, has been jacket on the battleship Idaho, has been commended by the Secretary of the Navy for rescuing Musician Alford W. Ogden, who fell overboard a short time ago. Mr. Michael J. Mahony, a New York boy, also on the Minnesota, has been given the same honor for saving Boatswain's Mate Carden Bagg.

BRIGHAM RAPS "TIN SOLDIERS"

Brigadier-General William H. Brigham, in his message as Chief of Staff to Governor Draper, attacks the policy of allowing companies of men not connected with the militia to parade in public with harmless imitations of firearms.

He says there are now thirty-three companies so organized in Worcester, Spencer, Holyoke, Fall River, Taunton, New Bedford, Lowell, Cambridge, Plymouth, Boston and Lawrence.

"These companies are under no State supervision whatever, he says. "It interferes with enlistments in the militia. Members of these companies have the spectacular and pleasant part of a soldier's experience, but are not obliged to study or be subject to the discipline and hard work of the regular militiamen; and, in my opinion, no more permits should be issued and those now in force should be subject to State supervision and inspection."

BURNED TRYING TO RESCUE CASH

Pasquale Cizzi, forty, a shoemaker, was badly burned about the hands and arms, early to-day while trying to save the money in the cash drawer, during a fire in his cobbler shop at No. 207 Green street, Jamaica Plain.

CANNIBALS KILL BRITISH FORCE

LONDON, Jan. 5.—Cannibals in Southern Nigeria, in West Central Africa, attacked a detachment of British soldiers under Lieutenant Thornburn, killing a number of them, according to advices arriving at the office of the war ministry to-day.

Reinforcement shave been ordered to Lieutenant Thornburn's aid.

Headache

"My father has been a sufferer from sick headache for the last twenty-five years and never found any relief until he began taking your Cascarets. Since he has begun taking Cascarets he has never had the headache. They have entirely cured him. Cascarets do what you recommend them to do. I will give you the privilege of using his name."—M. "Friday Specials" Began and Grew Up With Gilchrist's Until They Now Dominate the Friday Selling of Boston's Retail Stores

Friday Specials are two words so firmly linked with the Gilchrist name that Boston shoppers have come to regard them as a sort of Gilchrist trade mark.

"Friday Specials" in Boston originated with Gilchrist's. We're justly proud of the wonderful patronage they have attained. From the beginning they have been supreme in bargain importance. They hold a distinctly unique position in Boston merchandising.

$5,000 REWARD FOR 2 BANDITS

OGDEN, Utah, Jan. 5.—Five thousand dollars reward was offered today at the offices of the Harriman railroads for the capture of the two bandits who held up and robbed the Overland Limited on the southern Pacific near here. The police are totally baffled. They have been unable to find a trace of the men and while five posses are held, the police now admit that they all will be freed after the investigation.

Armed posses which have been scouring the country around the scene of the hold-up have been conducting a rigid search since midnight, seeking a trace of two bandits last night, have been unable to find a clew to have.

MANY EVASIONS OF TAX CHARGED

The report of the State Tax Commissioner was submitted to the General Court today. Chief interest centres in the declaration that there are many so-called voluntary associations doing business in the State that avoid taxation. The statute provides no system of accountability for these associations, which are practically the same as corporations and thus they avoid publicity and evade taxation. The commissioner recommends such legislation as will require these associations to furnish information the public is entitled to.

FORCE JAPANESE TEACHER TO QUIT

HONOLULU, Jan. 5.—Antagonism that has reached a stage of unusual violence prevails between American and Japanese residents of this city as the result of the appointment of Miss Toki Miamto, an educated Japanese girl, as a teacher in the Honolulu central grammar school and her immediate resignation in the face of indignant public sentiment.

The Japanese papers are publishing inflammatory articles denouncing the local ers of the prudent action of Miss Miamto's appointment, while the American press indorses the Americans in the stand.

Most vigorous among those opposing Miss Miamto was Judge Lightfoot, one of the leading attorneys of the Hawaiian Islands.

COMPETITION IS TOO DESTRUCTIVE, SAYS G. W. PERKINS

Competition under present methods of life is too destructive to be tolerated. Co-operation must become the order of the day.

It is the only method that will provide an efficiency such as will answer future conditions of life and the nation that first recognizes this and works out the problem will be the nation to lead in the future. If we are going to get away from ruinous competition to a "live and let live" basis we must co-operate all along the line, and to co-operate between capital and labor there must be a show-down as to what the business is doing. Stewart H. Perkins for the Institute Trade-winding Alumni Association.

MAN TAKEN IN BURGLAR TRAP

Concealed in a chest in the lodging house at No. 44 Lynde street, West End, early today, after seven hours for a street station waited for two hours for a man who had been "tipped off" as going to rob the house. Their patience was rewarded when a key was turned in the lock and a man stepped into the room and started to loot a set of the bureau drawers.

When enough evidence had been submitted they stepped from the closet and arrested the man. At the station house he said his name was Joseph Levine and that he roomed at No. 14 Braddock street, West End. He is said to be a salesman for a Hanover street jewelry firm.

2,000 DIMES FOR JILTED WOMAN

BROCKTON, Jan. 5.—Stephen Meyers of No. 7 Staniford place gave Miss Celia Stein 2,000 ten-cent pieces after the young couple had compromised on the verdict recently rendered in the Stein-Meyers court case against Meyers for $2,000 for breach of promise. She asked for $5,000 and when she found it was too much work to count and asked for $2,000 instead, she agreed on an immediate settlement for $200. More than 2,000 dimes, the silver value of which is $200, were counted out in the presence of a number of jeering spectators. Meyers and the young woman were married tonight and agreed this morning he did not like her.

BARS MOTHER IF WIFE RETURNS

"I will not say my mother to leave my home the moment my wife returns to me."

Thus has C. E. Clapp, a jeweler, of No. 10 Shawmut avenue, complied with a suggestion from Judge Grant of the Probate Court. Mrs. Lavina Clapp, the jeweler wife, left him eight months ago and sued for separate support. In court she declared it was a case of too much mother-in-law and Judge Grant suggested that Clapp's mother leave his home.

"As an evidence of my willingness to give up my mother for the sake of having my wife back with me I have had my lawyer write to her saying that my mother will leave as soon as she comes back," said Clapp to an AMERICAN reporter today.

Mrs. Clapp is living with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. James Roundy, at Marblehead. Although Clapp had the letter sent to her several days ago he has had no response and he does not know if his wife intends to return to him.

"It is indeed unfortunate that our domestic troubles should have had to be aired in court," said Clapp. "My mother has been with me a long time and I never knew until this case came to court last week that my wife objected to her being with me. I have two children by a former marriage and somebody must look after them while I am at work, so mother will remain with me here in Dearborn st. my wife comes back."

Mr. Clapp has been married to his present wife four years. He has two sons by his first marriage, one eight and the other fourteen years of age. He met his second wife, Lavina Roundy, at Lynn, and they were married there. A few years ago he rented his house at Lynn and the family moved to Reachmont.

It was last July that the Clapps separated. Mrs. Clapp filed her suit for separate maintenance and Clapp was served with papers in the action in October. After Judge Grant had heard the case last week he asked Clapp if he would be willing to ask his wife to find a home elsewhere and Clapp said he would.

"I do not hear from my wife soon I will believe that she does not care to come back to me," said Clapp today. "I will then buy my lawyer more to have her suit thrown out of court. I am perfectly willing to support her as long as she lives with me, but I do not care to support her away from me."

TRUST WAR CUTS PRICE OF MEATS

NEW YORK, Jan. 5.—The price of beef throughout the country is to be reduced, not by the beef trust, but by the independent dealers, as a result of their latest and most important move in the war against the trust.

A corporation formed by independent dealers has secured from the government of Brazil, by presidential proclamation, the right to do business in that country and to certain other important cattle and beef concessions. This beef is to be brought to America. It is said the first shipment will be made within six months.

Verification of the expected reduction in price was obtained from Jerome G. Hauser and Jacob Lowenstein, both of whom are interested in the independent beef company.

Cheaper Than Western Beef.

This is the first time that Brazil has consented to allow an American corporation to control any of the beef and cattle business there. The beef trust some time ago obtained similar concessions in the Argentine Republic, and it was reported at that time that beef would be shipped to New York and would result in lower prices both here and elsewhere.

Instead of that the beef trust shipped all its Argentine beef to Europe, so that it would not be sold in New York and other American cities in the competition with the American output.

The independent dealers say they can kill and ship beef in Brazil, ship it to New York, pay the duty and then sell the beef at a lower price than is asked for the Western product. Under the old tariff the duty on dressed beef was two cents per pound. The new tariff lowered the rate to one and one-half cents.

Wage War on Trust.

The battle for the Brazilian concessions has been on for a long time. It began when the beef trust obtained its concessions in the Argentine. The independents had hoped to gain a foothold there and so be able to supply Europe, but with cheaper beef. But when the concessions were granted the trust and the independents realized they were beaten. Their attention would be diverted to Europe and that the price in America would not be lowered, they turned their attention to Brazil.

The dealers declare the trust for political motives just issued is the result.

OWNER ABANDONS $500 BILL IN THEATRE

Some person, name unknown, but whom the evidence shows to be either a malefactor of great wealth or a newspaperman —both being so used to handling enormous amounts of money as to be careless about small changes—has forgotten a $500 bill, which was kept for him in the box office of the Park Theatre. The careless man proffered the bill in payment for two seats at the box office window early Monday night. "Obviously well," said the purchaser in his haste to get away from the crowd. "Change is easy on cull. "Hold it with the tickets and I'll call for the receipt." He has not called yet, and the box office man is getting worried—one may say. A strange coincidence "Arsene Lupin" is being played at the theatre. Perhaps Arsene should be called on to solve the identity of the owner of the $500 bill.

LEXINGTON OUTDOOR CARNIVAL POSTPONED

Announcement was made to-day that the Lexington outdoor carnival, planned for Saturday, January 7, at the Twin Elm Springs, has been postponed because of the mild weather and cold rain. Chairman J. Willard Hayden, Jr., of the executive committee, said that the carnival has not been injured in the least by the postponement. All the committee's plans is waterproof, and the carnival will be given on the first Saturday when weather conditions make it possible. Ample announcement will be made of widespread advertising forty-eight hours in advance of the time.

TONIGHT'S ATTRACTIONS AT BOSTON THEATRES

BOSTON OPERA HOUSE — Boston Opera Company in operatic repertoire.

BOSTON—Genee in "The Bachelor Belles."

BOWDOIN SQUARE — Vaudeville and Pictures.

CASTLE SQUARE — "Jack and the Beanstalk."

COLONIAL—"The Echo."

COLUMBIA—Burlesque.

GAIETY—Burlesque.

GLOBE—"The Rosary."

GRAND OPERA HOUSE — "East Lynne."

HOLLIS—David Warfield in "The Return of Peter Grimm."

HOWARD ATHENAEUM — Burlesque and vaudeville.

HUB—Vaudeville and Moving Pictures.

KEITH'S—Vaudeville.

MAJESTIC — Dorothy Donnelly in "Madame X."

ORPHEUM—Vaudeville and Pictures.

PARK—"Arsene Lupin."

SCENIC TEMPLE—Motion Pictures and Vaudeville.

SHUBERT—Olga Nethersole in "Mary Magdalene."

TREMONT—"The Scarecrow."

WALDRON'S CASINO—Burlesque.

The engagement of "The Return of Peter Grimm" at the Hollis has been extended from two to four weeks, and "The Spendthrift" already announced at that theatre, will seek a home elsewhere. David Belasco will in turn, however, follow the quotation under over David Warfield, whose first appearances in a new piece are always attended closely by his manager. It is hoped if Mr. Belasco will leave the field to wander alone in the spirit land of Peter Grimm until Saturday.

Columns have been written about the Belasco attention to small detail, but it is worth repeating that of all of the antique furnishings in the single set used in "The Return of Peter Grimm" nothing is modern looked. Several thousands of dollars worth of "props" are used, including gold silver service and antique glass with all of which might have been expensive reproductions. It would look the same from the sunny side of the curtain, but that is not the Belasco method.

Playgoers are naturally taking a lively interest in the coming engagement of Mme. Bernhardt at the Boston Theatre, but not even the palmy days of grand opera or the final hours ever produced greater zeal under results. Bernhardt's farewell performance will be a gala affair, no doubt that will prove a real farewell—will give her admirers something worth while to regret for. She will open the week with "L'Aiglon" and continue as follows: Tuesday matinee, "Camille"; Tuesday evening, "Jeanne d'Arc"; Wednesday evening, "Fedora"; Thursday matinee, "L'Aiglon"; Friday evening, "Hamlet"; Saturday matinee, "La Sorciere."

Manager Fiske says there's no use denying that she has an honest liking for interviewers. "If anyone, the exhibitors would be much more in keeping with so interestingly classical art to say to would-be interviewers: 'Call at an over-fatigued, and on that gush, and then permit myself to be gracefully interviewed.' But the real truth is otherwise. When I see an interview coming I just reach out and grab it.

"And that is all there is to it."

The new attractions announced for next week are as follows: Bernhardt at the Boston Theatre, "Follies of 1910" at the Park, Lew Dockstader's Minstrels at the Colonial, and "At the Old Cross Roads" at the Grand Opera House.

John Craig is finding no reason to regret the selection of "Jack and the Beanstalk" for his mid-season musical attraction. Those readers who visit the Castle Square will hear familiar names as the play progresses. Three of the principal roles are played by Desmond and the Dingbat Family, figure in the movements of the characters.

In two weeks William Elliott, who plays the role of Raymond, the young lawyer in "Madame X," will be married to Miss Louise Rosco, daughter of David Belasco. Mr. Elliott is an Englishman by birth, but comes to Boston as his home, as his childhood days were passed here.

With "Madame X" at the Majestic and Olga Nethersole in "Mary Magdalene" at the Shubert, the theatres seem to have acquired a local monopoly in the sobbing drama.

3 CHILDREN IN PERIL OF FIRE

Three children one of them dangerously ill, were carried from the burning tenement house early today, at No. 23 Flint street, Lonn. Mrs. Mary Rosenberg carried a fourteen-year-old boy invalid down two flights of stairs, through smoke and flames to the street.

Two little girls, Annie and Mary Rosenberg, two and four years old respectively, were carried through smoke and flames by Park Officer Patrick Barry.

The fire did $600 damage to a three-story wooden tenement. It started on the first floor and was caused by Annie Rosenberg, the daughter of Morris Rosenberg, occupant of the first floor, playing with matches.

The second floor is occupied by Isaac Rosenberg, his son Isaac and two daughters, Annie and Mary. The top floor is occupied by Mrs. Mary Rosenberg. The families are related.

$100,000 N. Y. JEWEL THEFT

NEW YORK, Jan. 5—The entire New York detective force and a prominent private agency are to-day trailing a clever and daring gang of Western jewelry thieves who have stolen $100,000 worth of jewelry and gems in this city within the past fortnight.

Although the police refuse to reveal the details, news of the robberies leaked out to-day. The detective force has discovered claws which lead them to believe that a Western gang well known to the police of a score of bigger cities perpetrated the robberies and have shipped their loot out of town, some to be sold in Western cities, some in Canada, while part of it has been transported abroad.

The first robbery occurred during the holidays, and the other two followed in quick succession. The authorities will not reveal the names of the victims.

BATTLE FEARED IN MARYLAND

CUMBERLAND, Md., Jan. 5.—With war threatened between armed forces of rival coal companies, a force of deputies, led by Sheriff Hebdley, left here to-day for Frostburg to maintain order.

The trouble is between the Piedmont, Georges and the Price-Davis and Williams coal companies. The lands of the rivals adjoin and there has been litigation over titles. A report reached here that the tracks of the Price-Davis and Williams companies had been torn up and that the companies were armed employes for a battle.

AMES CAMPAIGN ON IN BOSTON

Colonel Butler Ames moved into Boston to-day with his special cohorts and took up a position for his fight against Senator Lodge.

Senator Nason of Haverhill, Daniel O'Brien of Lowell and Representative Holt of Methuen, with Joe Legaree, Ames's private secretary, as advisory counsel, are to be the field managers. They have been quartered at the Parker House. Conferences will now be held daily.

Senator Nason and the others with him say in concert that the prospects look brighter for Ames than ever before. With in the last two days alone they claim that there have been accessions.

They say the twenty-five Republicans, the fear of whose being "off" forced an open ballot on the speakership yesterday, are anti-Lodge men, and that it does not take a very sharp head for figures to add these investigators to the short ballot which Mr. Lomasney received for a first total in the House alone.

Representative Holt to-day said that in reality most of the Ames men are strong Walker supporters, and that they were much relieved with the turn which things took yesterday. The rest of the fight, though, he continued, is a different matter.

The Ames talk on the whole, it must be confessed, is centred in the small coterie which Congressman Gallivan gathered about him at the beginning.

From among the other insurgent Republicans it cannot be said that there seems to be any general growth in favor of Ames from Lowell.

These Republicans do not want Lodge, but they are far from certain that Ames can do the job. They are casting over the entire field for possibilities.

Joseph Walker, Speaker of the House, is still the most promising of the new men. He only would he get their vote, but they say in addition that he would get the vote of a number of Democrats more than he got in the speakership fight.

Their plan is still to throw him in as a candidate whether he will or not. He is going to nominate Senator Lodge, and this very act is expected to centre attention on him for a possible turn.

GARY PREDICTS GOOD BUSINESS

NEW YORK Jan. 5.—Judge E. H. Gary, master of the U. S. Steel Corporation, sees in the present upon the business horizon of the new year.

"I am a conservative optimist," he declared to-day to an AMERICAN reporter. "At the beginning of 1910 I sounded a note of warning. I then perceived that business prospects were not roseate as many men of large affairs were proclaiming. I now desire to take issue with many of the same men, who are declaring that 1911 is to be a bad year.

"I feel as capable of expressing the conviction that the outlook for the year is good as they do of declaring the contrary. On the whole, conditions seem sound, with nothing within my purview to cause alarm. Why others are filling the newspapers with pessimistic utterances I am unable to understand.

"The year that has just closed called for the greatest output of ingots and steel rails in the history not only of the United States Steel Corporation, but of industry in the country.

Old Lines Extended.

"Not only were old rails replaced with new ones, but there were more extensions of old lines, more new construction than ever was generally in use required. If the railroads should keep up to prior standard in this regard they would use annually the entire output of 60 mile in the United States and we should have none for export."

"Isn't it a fact, though, that the United States Steel Corporation has greatly reduced production within the last few months?" was asked.

"It is true," replied Judge Gary, "that the production at the present time is only about 50 per cent. of our capacity, but that should by no means be considered a discouraging sign.

"It must be remembered that we have very considerably increased our capacity within the last year so that a 50 per cent. reduction in present circumstances doesn't represent by the same reduction eighteen months or two years ago. Orders are good, and, as I said before, I see no cause for pessimism."

Judge Gary refused to add anything to his formal statement regarding the resignation of William E. Corey from the presidency of the Steel Trust. It is known, however, that at the next meeting of the board of directors, of which Judge Gary is chairman, the resignation will be accepted and Mr. Corey's official connection with the Steel Trust will end. The meeting will be held January 31.

Corey at Old Office.

Mr. Corey appeared at his old office in the Empire Building at the usual hour today, but remained there only a very short time.

A report that Mr. Corey will hereafter devote his attention and the bulk of his fortune to the promotion of a copper enterprise modelled after the Steel Trust and very little evidence of a financial district to-day. He is understood to have $5,000,000 invested in the various companies, which comprise the Consolidated Copper Company, together with a million or more in the Green Consolidated.

The concensus of the best informed opinion as to Corey's immediate future plans is that the very day after his resignation is accepted on January 31 he and Mrs. Corey will depart for Europe. Mrs. Corey is known to like the life of Paris, near which city she owns a fine old chateau.

That Henry H. Rogers was a friend of Mr. Corey is evinced by a story of an attempt to oust Corey at the time of his marriage to Mrs. Gilman.

Rogers Defends Him.

At the meeting practically every member of the board, including J. P. Morgan, James Gayley, since resigned, and George W. Perkins, were present, with Judge Gary presiding. A formal motion, calling upon Mr. Corey to resign, was offered, and two or three members advocated its adoption, urging that Mr. Corey's marital affairs had destroyed his usefulness as president of the company.

"Leave Belmont," said Mr. Rogers, "with a great deal of interest to the remarks made upon this motion. When we hired Mr. Corey we did not consider his morals. We considered only his great ability as a steelmaker. For aught I believe, is a very valuable asset to this corporation.

"However, it may be that we should consider any attempt to regulate the morals and the private lives of those connected with the steel corporation, but if this is the case let us start in with the gentlemen sitting at this board."

MOUSE TAIL PUTS PLYMOUTH ELECTRIC PLANT ON THE 'OUTS'

PLYMOUTH, Jan. 5.—A tiny mouse put the electric lighting system out of commission for three-quarters of an hour last night. It crawled into the switch box at the power house, found a place in the insulation on the feed wire just big enough to admit its slender tail; then, resting its nose on the return wire, short circuited the system and incidentally gave up its own life. From the time the power house was darkened after a terrific flash until the electrical engineers found the cause of the trouble, three-quarters of an hour had elapsed, and the entire town was wondering what the matter was.

ALL EUROPE IN ANARCHIST HUNT

LONDON, Jan. 5.—The British secret service and Scotland Yard are making elaborate efforts to-day to connect the Anarchists who perished in their Sidney street stronghold in Tuesday's battle and their followers in London with American Reds. Cipher cablegrams have passed between England and the United States in the search, which has now become international.

One police theory is that a great inter-national band of terrorists exists, possibly with headquarters somewhere in the United States, living off the gains of robbery, murder and other crimes.

The theory of Scotland Yard connecting Americans with the dead Anarchists is that the men shot to death in London's Sidney street fight were the men who are wanted in Boston, Philadelphia and other American cities for jewelry and other robberies aggregating nearly $50,000. They believe that they are the same who looted the store of Samuel Ullman, a Boston jeweler, last March, securing $18,000 worth of booty.

Believed Boston Crooks.

According to advices from the United States, the men wanted there went under the names of Harry Rothstein, alias "Navok the blacksmith," Jacob Goldberg, alias "Red" Tracy, and George Goldberg.

Parliament is going to take a hand in the deportation of desperate criminals and foreign Anarchists from England, and as a result of the reign of terror which has followed the battle in Sidney street, Home Secretary Winston Churchill will be called upon to explain why 12,000 soldiers and police and artillery were called out in the simple matter of making arrests.

The police declare the Anarchists aimed to destroy four rulers, King George, Emperor William, Czar Nicholas and King Alfonso. Besides the Anarchists now flocking to London to help Scotland Yard, confidential police are also reported to be working in conjunction with the British forces to assist in running down alleged members of the murder syndicate headed by "Peter the Peter."

The mystery concerning the women who are said to have been arrested in connection with the battle and anarchistic revelations has deepened. It is further said that the British authorities have taken more Anarchists into custody, but officials in preserving a dignified silence on account of the storm of criticism.

Hunt for More Bodies.

Search of the ruins of the Sidney street Anarchist house was still in progress today, and there was no abatement of the crowds which thronged the adjacent thoroughfares, taxing the endeavors of the police to keep them back.

Despite the rumors that a woman government spy named Bessie Gershon had gleaned valuable secrets from the Anarchists while living among them in the guise of a Russian refugee, the belief was expressed to-day that the full details of the organization will never be learned.

This information was destroyed when the Anarchists went to their own deaths in the Sidney street stronghold. It is believed that practically all of the documentary evidence was destroyed. Damage suits against the government are three in number, two of the Sidney street property, which was damaged by fire and bullets. In this connection Secretary Churchill will appear before Parliament when it convenes and make a thorough report in defence of the police action taken against the desperadoes.

Scotland Yarders who are searching the East End slums for members of the Anarchistic band are heavily armed and it would not be surprising if another battle should occur at any time.

TO BURN D'AULBY 'OLD MASTERS'

Boston art lovers and Boston society are interested in the report from Paris that Count Raoul D'Aulby, who, with his wife, the former Miss Francesca Lund of this city, is on trial on charges of art swindling, the French government will destroy his $250,000 collection of "old masters."

The "counts" who has admitted that he is the son of a London tailor, named Dudley, is accused of having swindled the late Charles Hamilton Paine of this city, and his wife, now the Duchess de Chaudrey-Proulx. During the trial in Tours, France, Dudley alleged the persecutions against him and his wife were caused by the jealous fury of the former Mrs. Paine, whose love he had scorned, and letters read from Mrs. Paine to him in open court, resulted in the former Boston society woman dropping the prosecution. The government's action now seems to abandon it, and the Dudleys are now awaiting sentence.

The French government is anxious to put a stop to the exportation of forged "old masters" and will seize and destroy them wherever found. It has already told the AMERICAN, its agents recently made "hell" Tracy and George Goldberg, alias "Red" Tracy, and George Goldberg, and New York regarding the paintings which Dudley tried to sell while in this country previous to his marriage to Miss Lund and she would be well advised to condemn the spurious works in his gallery.

Boston society also is discussing the question of how it will receive the former Miss Lund if she and Dudley return to this city to live in case they are acquitted. In the light of Dudley's past and alleged theft trial, society is frankly puzzled as to what it will do in the matter.

FIRST ASSEMBLY TO BE BIG SOCIETY AFFAIR

By ELIZABETH ELLIOTT.

The most important event in society this week is the first of the two annual assemblies at the Hotel Somerset on Thursday night. This event is looked forward to by the most brilliant function of the season, and is the one occasion of all Boston society affairs and balls at which the selected few also are included in the list of guests. A number of notably fashionable dinners will precede the ball, the most important being that of Mrs. E. Preble Motley at the Algonquin Club in honor of her cousin, Miss Elizabeth Sears, who is a debutante this winter.

The debutantes are to be noticeably numerous this year, there being no fewer than nineteen. Mrs. Ames, Mrs. Saltonstall and Mrs. Hunnewell, having debutante daughters of their own.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles P. Lyman came in from their country home at Dover the first of the week and are occupying their house in Beacon street.

One of the most interesting events in society comes to-night when Miss Eleanor Parker will give a dance for her niece, Miss Elizabeth Parker, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Parker at the Hotel Somerset.

Mr. and Mrs. Marshall M. Thomas (Blanche Oelrichs) have taken the house at No. 7 East Eighty-fourth street, New York, and have deserted Newport for the Winter.

Mrs. Paul A. Sorg, whose husband's illness made such a splendid showing at the Horseless Fair, gave a reception and dance at the Plaza in New York last night.

January is the date chosen for the wedding of Miss Grace Kelley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William V. Kelley of Commonwealth avenue and Paul Cyr. The ceremony will be performed at noon in Trinity Church.

The engagement has been announced of Miss Rosamond Lang, daughter of Mrs. R. J. Lang and Frederick Ruthven Gale, son of Charles H. Gallaer of Spring field. FOSS' INAUGURAL ADDRESS CALLS FOR POPULAR GOVERNMENT

'MASSACHUSETTS MUST BANISH EVERY POWER HOSTILE TO THE RULE OF THE PEOPLE.'

Following is the full text of Governor Foss's inaugural address to the Legislature to-days

Gentlemen of the General Court of Massachusetts:

We are here, in accord with time honored custom, to complete the inauguration of an Executive. I am deeply sensible of the honor conferred and the obligation imposed. There are, however, weightier matters than the mere formality of inauguration confronting me, and to these we must address ourselves.

We have reached a crisis in the affairs of this Commonwealth. It is a crisis which our form of government is facing to-day not only in Massachusetts but in every State of the Union. This crisis is all the more marked in our State because Massachusetts is the birthplace of popular government.

The people, in all sections of the country, have lost confidence in many of their public servants.

REVOLT AGAINST BOSSISM.

The dictatorship by political bosses and by representatives of special interests or bodys reselfed, for these men desire to control public servants and to direct legislation to their own ends. They do not desire the enactment of laws guaranteeing justice to all and privilege to none.

Massachusetts has always been the leader at every great turning point in the policy of the nation, and she must lead to-day in restoring the government into the hands of the people. She must banish every power and every influence which is hostile to the rule of the people.

She must tolerate no public servant who arrogates to himself the prerogatives of government, or who turns his back to the people at the beck of special interests; for government does not exist for special interests or their agents—it exists for the people. It belongs to the people.

GOVERNMENT IS USURPED.

That, gentlemen, is the ideal. Now, what are the conditions to-day?

Government of the people is coming to be only a name. Representatives of the monopolistic interests have usurped the prerogatives of the people.

They have acquired too great a control, and have too largely shaped the policy of Federal and State affairs.

This usurpation of power can only be ended by the people taking into their own hands the direction and control of their government.

The first step is to abolish the boss and all his agencies; the caucus, the nominating convention and all political machinery which intervenes between the people and their government.

All candidates for public office without exception must be chosen by the people through the direct primary.

Only by means such as this can they be held accountable. No public servant must have any other master than the people.

Establish the direct primary, choose your own public servants without reference to any machine or faction, make them accountable only to yourselves, and popular government will be established.

To the direct primary must be joined the power of recall; so that any public servant who proves recreant to his trust may be immediately dismissed.

INITIATIVE AND REFERENDUM.

Important as these steps are, it is of far greater importance that the people keep their power over legislation through the initiative and the referendum.

Under the conditions which exist to-day, as I see them, these are the only true safeguards of representative government.

There can be no valid objection to these measures if we believe in the capacity, and therefore the right, of the people to govern themselves.

If the people are competent to exercise the power of the franchise, then they are competent to direct their public servants and recall them if they are not true to their trust.

The referendum provides that an important legislative measure shall be submitted to the people upon their request before it becomes a law.

The initiative provides that the people themselves may prepare and pass a constitutional amendment or an important law if the Legislature persistently refuses to enact it.

Both these measures have great influence for good, not so much in the actual exercise of the power by the people as in the potentiality of that power. Its very existence, and the realization that it may be exercised, renders useless the subsidy and nullifies the great resources which the special interests have employed for many years to defeat legislation.

ON LABOR LEGISLATION.

Public servants who deem that they represent themselves and not their constituents naturally object to these measures and yet a measure which is contrary to the will of the majority has no justification to exist.

I urge upon you a resolve for a constitutional amendment to provide for the initiative and the referendum.

Labor is the foundation upon which the structure of popular government is built, and as such it must be recognized. Its just demands met, its rights guarded and protected. It must have every legislative safeguard that capital has.

We all recognize the right of labor to organize, and we must further recognize that labor should be exempt from unfair injunction restrictions, and that the liberty or property of any citizen ought not to be taken from him without trial by jury.

It is even more important that the composition of labor be above a bare living. It must ensure to the workingman adequate measures of protection to those dependent upon him.

PROTECT WOMEN AND CHILDREN.

We must rigidly define and limit the hours of labor, especially for women and children, with due regard to healthful conditions and educational opportunity.

In safe guarding labor from unjust conditions, and from agitation we can learn much from Germany, which is the home of safe methods.

In particular I would direct your earnest attention to the subject of workingmen's compensation for injuries. Immediate and equitable legislation is demanded, not only by the employee but by the employer. A wise compensation act will be a benefit to both capital and labor. The criterion of such a law must be definite, certain and speedy adjustment of all claims, so that there may be no antagonism between capital and labor.

The result of such a law is not to be measured merely by financial consideration, but by the better relationship which will result between the employee and the employer and its employe.

VOCATIONAL TRAINING.

Let Massachusetts take the lead along this humanitarian line of progress; for above everything else we are an industrial commonwealth. It is therefore vital that our industries be safeguarded and our workmen safeguarded by wise and progressive legislation.

And right here we must recognize that a sound body and an industrial training and education are the birthright of every citizen. This birthright must be ensured to him by an industrial education that fits him to earn his living.

We have technical colleges, but we need industrial kindergartens to teach our boys and girls how to do the simplest things in life, and to do them intelligently.

This is the day of specialization, even in the ordinary vocations. We are specializing to so great an extent that old methods no longer meet the industrial need of the present day.

Our educational institutions must keep pace with the new order of things; and for this reason attention must be given not merely to the higher forms of technical education, but to what are termed vocational and trade schools, in which the youth may fit himself for practical, everyday work.

TRANSPORTATION QUESTIONS.

This change in our educational system must come immediately—even at the expense of academic work, if necessary, for our boys and girls on leaving school must have some practical training which will make an honest livelihood possible.

The report of the Board of Education will be submitted to the General Court this session, and I recommend that it receive most careful attention, especially with respect to vocational, technical and trade schools.

From labor we pass to the next vital necessity of industry—transportation.

We must economize and extend by wise and equitable legislation all the transportation facilities at our command, in a spirit not of hostility but of fairness and impartiality.

We must legislate with a view to bringing the trunk lines in the heart of this country, but of Canada, to our great terminal and our ports, in order that we may have a wider distribution for our products and a freer communication by rail and water with the markets of the world.

DEVELOP OUR SEA TRADE.

We should recognize that Massachusetts and all New England constitute a vast terminal for the seaboard business, which requires for its products the widest distribution. We must enlarge these means of distribution by every method in our power.

Above all things our transportation must not be confined to the railroads. We have one of the finest seaports of the world, and its development and use depend upon broad legislation directed to both coastwise and foreign business.

The State must co-operate with its metropolis, Boston, in the ownership and development of docks and terminals, in order that the largest and best ocean steamships may unite with the railroads in the upbuilding of our industry and commerce.

The State must also take immediate steps to outline and construct a system of waterways and canals to supplement the railroads, so that raw materials may be secured to our industries at the lowest possible cost.

We have cause for gratification that work on the Cape Cod Canal is progressing rapidly, and that its early completion seems assured.

I believe that the dredging out of the Merrimac and Connecticut rivers, and the building of the so-called Weymouth Canal from Fall River through the Bridgewaters and Brockton, are among the first undertakings that should be inaugurated.

CITES NEW YORK PRECEDENT.

Other States are entering upon work of this character, notably New York State, which is spending millions on the Erie Canal; and if we are to hold our own along industrial lines, we must develop the internal water ways of the State.

In the last session of the General Court an expenditure of $3,000,000 was authorized to provide for new piers, with the condition that they should be leased before construction. I respectfully urge that this fact be amended so that work may begin immediately, believing as I do that if, when the piers are completed, they are not quickly brought into useful and profitable service by our dominant railroad corporations, then the State can take and ought to take immediate steps to secure some other tenant.

Right here let me say what I think the attitude of the State should be with reference to the quasi-public corporations. In the first place, I see nothing inimical in the mere size of a corporation, provided, of course, it is suitably regulated.

CONDEMNS HOLDING COMPANY.

On the other hand, a holding company is in theory wholly at variance with the common law and with the statutes of the State. It is therefore indefensible.

It can be regarded only as an act of legislative complaisance or of financial subterfuge, and on either of these grounds it is intolerable.

The incorporation of the Boston Holding Company was special legislation in the interest of privilege. I regard it as one of the most flagrant examples of pernicious legislation enacted in recent years. It legalized some of the most objectionable corporate methods.

The people are to be congratulated that the original promoters, in splitting the company to issue bonds which were to be free from taxation, and which were to be a legal investment for savings banks, was thwarted. Legislation of this character should never again be permitted.

I would also call attention to the voluntary associations which issue shares evidencing a participating ownership, but which, under existing laws, are subject to none of the regulations as to publicity and taxation that apply to both business and public-service corporations.

HITS SECRET LAW MAKING.

I do not recommend the appointment of a special commission to consider this subject, but I believe that the Tax Commissioner may well be directed to investigate the further regulation by the Commonwealth of such voluntary associations, and to report thereon to the next General Court, with specific recommendations.

I also think there should be a change of method on the part of the public service corporations in seeking legislation from the General Court.

The old method of framing desired legislation behind closed doors, through legislative agents and the lobby, should be entirely discontinued. There is no occasion for secrecy, but, on the contrary, for the greatest degree of publicity.

The corporation before coming to the Legislature should put its case before the people themselves, through the press and by public meetings, if necessary, and in this way enlighten the people fully and frankly as to just what it wants and what it proposes to give in return.

THE JUDICIARY.

The people will then be in a position to advise their legislators. The corporation should do this with the greatest frankness, revealing not merely a part of the truth, but the whole truth.

My own experience in corporate management is that when the people thoroughly understand a proposition they act with intelligence and fairness. If the corporation invites the public in this spirit of honesty and co-operation, does the public in return with great more liberal course than can be secured in any other way. These methods will command the confidence and avert the capital of the people for these enterprises.

The present system on the part of the corporations will forever end the lobby and its attendant train, and it will inevitably give the corporation all that it is entitled to.

I think we are all agreed that the first duty of a free government is to ensure the speedy enforcement of legal rights as between man and man. There is no excuse for a delay of years before a plaintiff can finally establish his rights, or a defendant be finally relieved of the trouble and uncertainty of a law suit.

DENIALS OF JUSTICE.

I am well aware that in this State delays in the trial of causes have amounted to a practical denial of justice.

It is evident that some method must be found of clearing the dockets of the Superior Court so that cases may be speedily heard and determined, and to this end I recommend that the number of judges be increased.

I further recommend that the present salaries of the justices of the Supreme and Superior courts be increased, and as a condition of this increase I recommend that the courts open for their Fall term on the Tuesday succeeding labor day.

I would further recommend that this Legislature carefully consider the report of the commission appointed to study the conditions in our courts and see whether more of their recommendations cannot now be adopted.

I would also recommend that the Supreme and Superior courts be given full control and regulation of their trial dockets.

In respect to criminal cases, it is, in my judgment, outrageous that a suspected person can now remain imprisoned for a long period before a hearing can be given and his rights determined. This violates all public sense of justice, and should be remedied.

FINANCE BOARD.

The affairs of the Commonwealth pertaining to the conduct of the public business are essentially of a business character, and they should be conducted along well-established business lines, such as prevail in any great corporation.

The Massachusetts Commission on the Cost of Living says that "the methods of compiling statistics in various State, county, city and town administrations of government appear to be an anthetical chaos. They need simplification and co-ordination; they should supplement and explain each other, and must be accurate and logical conclusions."

In the administration of the several counties of this State officials have multiplied and expenses grown, until to-day it is virtually impossible to determine how much the counties cost or how many officers are employed, or to obtain any definite information regarding county affairs.

To accomplish this end, it is necessary that some central authority be appointed by the State, with power to investigate and report to the public on the business methods of the various State and county departments, and, when occasion demands, city and town governments.

PROTECTION OF STATE WARDS.

Such a board, with powers covering the whole State, having authority to summon persons with papers, should be authorized by the Legislature. This board, to reach its highest efficiency, should be non-partisan in its broadest sense. The result of its work will be of the highest importance as a means of preventing fraud and extravagance.

Another branch of the State's business in which a higher efficiency is demanded is that relating to the wards of the State.

During the past year we have spent more than the total amount of the direct State tax in the care of our charitable and correctional institutions. The tax amounted to $4,500,000; the expense stated amounted to over $4,900,000.

While it must ever remain our fixed duty to protect those helpless ones, yet immediate steps should be taken to prevent such a long increasing number of people from losing the power of self-support, either through mental, moral or physical sickness, or through that industrial inefficiency which leads to pauperism.

ASKS ADVICE OF PEOPLE.

We should seek out all the causes which result in the loss of personal independence and self-supporting power, and apply scientific measures of personal help to all who are drifting toward our public institutions.

This is the greatest problem at present confronting us. In the endeavor to solve it, I call upon all citizens who are properly qualified by training and experience to advise the Executive office freely, as a matter of public duty. I shall also at the earliest possible moment secure the services of the most competent experts, with a view to recommending the necessary legislation.

On business principles, I am not in favor of commissions as a means of transacting public business, unless they are appointed subject to recall, for I believe their tendency is not in accord with popular or representative government.

They have practically no check placed over them. They multiply unnecessary officers and clerks, and thereby increase the

INCOME TAX LAW URGED BY GOVERNOR IN HIS INAUGURAL

The people demand that Massachusetts shall take her place alongside of other States in aiding the federal government in levying an income tax, that the burdens of taxation may fall more evenly upon the wealth of the country, where they justly belong. This wise legislation will assist in securing the necessary revenue for the support of the general government and permit the burdens of taxation to be lifted from the necessities of life.—From Governor Foss's inaugural address.

GOVERNOR URGES GREATER BOSTON

DECLARES COMMONWEALTH MUST AID IN UP-BUILDING COMMERCE OF GREAT SEAPORT.

expense of carrying on the work of the different branches of the State's activities.

ELIMINATE SOME COMMISSIONS.

Therefore, I shall doubtless recommend the elimination of some and the consolidation of other commissions.

I now advise the abolition of the following commissions, which relate to quasi-public corporations, namely: The Railroad Commission; the Gas and Electric Light Commission; the Boston Transit Commission and the Highway Commission, which includes the supervision of the telephone and telegraph companies. And in their places I recommend the creation of a Public Utilities Board, which should consolidate the functions of these commissions, with the stipulation that the tax-collecting function of the Highway Commission shall revert to the State Treasurer's department.

This Board should be composed of five members, whose terms should be for ten years, subject to the recall of any member at any State election. The chairman should be a lawyer. This Board should have the right to employ and hear counsel; its decisions should be in writing, with the vote of each member recorded, and it should have the power of initiative.

HOME RULE FOR CITIES.

I regard home rule for the cities as an essential part of popular government. The responsibility for good government in our municipalities must rest directly upon the citizens, and they should be sovereign in the affairs of their city.

I believe that the people can be trusted to elect competent, honest and efficient public servants. In the event of failure, the moral and intellectual education of such failure is worth all it costs.

The responsibility for good government cannot be shifted from the people.

Our first duty, as I see it, is to create a greater Boston by the confederation of all the towns and cities within a radius of at least ten miles, and possibly more.

I maintain that our surrounding citizens whose business interests bring them to Boston daily, who enjoy the protection of her police and the use of her highways, and who are included within her five-cent fare limit, have no right to stamp the dust from their feet at 5 o'clock, and assume that they have no further responsibility for the good government of the very city in which they earn their livelihood, and where their commercial and financial interests are centered.

URGES A GREAT METROPOLIS.

For example, the rapid-transit system that Boston maintains is far more in the interest of those suburban communities than in the interest of the city of Boston.

It is my observation that the people who have made the loudest protest against the city government have been those who sleep and pay their taxes outside the city limits.

It contend that it is the duty of these suburban towns and cities to become an integral part of the metropolitan district to guide with the city itself in the development of a great metropolis. This union should be not merely a commercial, but also a political one.

We should have a union on the borough system, under which these several towns and cities might preserve their individuality their individuality and historic interest, but under which they would contribute to the their franchise and their personal service to the better government of the metropolitan city.

However much individual opinion may vary on the details of this plan, this much is certain, that we shall never attain the ambition or reap the rewards of a great metropolitan community until we have replaced our narrow parochialism by the broad spirit of co-operation and service.

ELECTION REFORMS.

Turning now to the consideration of our election methods, let us give earnest thought to the subject of campaign expense.

The use of money in our elections has become a great evil, for it amounts to a substantial denial of the privilege of a man of moderate means to aspire to many public offices in the Commonwealth; or else it overwhelmingly tempts him to make his secret peace with those private interests which will finance his campaign if he will serve them in office.

It has become no small part of the lobby to-day to go about the State before the caucuses, "setting up districts"; in other words, making private agreements to supply candidates with campaign funds if they will promise in return to be friendly to the interests the lobby is serving.

To correct this evil it is necessary to prohibit those methods of campaigning which cost so much money, and are not in themselves necessary for the proper enlightenment of the voters.

CARRYING OF VOTERS.

A healthy man does not need—and ought not to have—a carriage to convey him to the polls to perform a duty which he owes to his country, his State and his family.

The burden of hiring carriages and automobiles is too great for a candidate to bear in his own purse, and not pledged to some strong financial interest, to assume.

The occasional carriage which is needed to convey an infirm man to the polls the State ought to furnish.

For these reasons I recommend that the General Court prohibit the hiring of carriages to transport voters to the polls in any State, city or town election, except such as may be provided by the State for the use of the aforesaid infirm.

As for the able-bodied voter, it would be far better to provide a penalty for unreasonably neglecting to go to the polls, or to give the warden of the election precinct power to call a servant and bring him to the polls; just as the Speaker of the House can order the Sergeant-at-Arms to arrest and bring a member to his seat when his presence is needed.

COMPEL CIVIC DUTY.

If it be not constitutional to compel citizens to do their civic duty, Massachusetts ought to take the lead in such wise legislation by making it so.

In my judgment, the State should provide the political parties with halls in which to hold rallies in State elections, and should also provide a circular in which the candidates may state in their own words arguments in support of their candidacy.

For the hiring of political halls, access to the voters and expounding the political principles of the candidates is not a privilege of the candidate, but is a privilege of the voters themselves; nor a privilege of a political party, but a privilege of government itself—since those who are to handle the machinery of government must be chosen upon the fullest information and must conduct it upon correct principles.

The government itself is the chief beneficiary of the public meetings which are held to discuss political measures and candidates. Hence the government ought to supply halls in the different cities and towns once during a campaign for the candidates of all political parties.

DIRECT NOMINATIONS.

I am of the opinion that the armories and assembly halls in cities and towns should be freely opened to the citizens for political meetings.

The method suggested will act to stimulate the citizens to take a closer and more personal interest in shaping the policies of their government.

This will tend to lessen the influence of the men or corporations offering to pay campaign expenses. It will give the man of moderate means a more equal chance to serve his State, and it will promote the independence of our public servants.

I also recommend that legislation be enacted calling for the popular nomination of United States Senators.

Twenty-nine Legislatures have now passed resolutions to this end, and all but two of the remaining States have expressed themselves as favoring direct election in one form or another. Twenty-two States through various laws now mandate their senators by the vote of the people; and seven States have, through the voluntary action of the political parties, arrived at the same result.

LEGISLATIVE DISTRICTS.

Four times has the National House of Representatives given the two-thirds vote required for an amendment to the constitution in this respect, and four times has the United States Senate defeated the amendment. The last vote of the House in 1902 was unanimous.

Last May the House of Representatives of this Commonwealth voted in favor of such a direct vote, but the senate defeated the resolution. Since then I have the endorsement of the popular branch of the General Court, in recommending that a substitute be passed, under which the legislators may be instructed by the people as to their choice for United States Senator.

The Federal law requires the redistricting of the State at this time. The purpose of this provision is not only to ensure a fair Congressional apportionment, but to guarantee that the people shall be equitably represented in the State Legislature.

In the past this redistricting has been governed too largely by partisan considerations, and the districts have been laid out with a view to serving the interests of the dominant political party in the State.

THE PEOPLE HAVE SPOKEN.

The necessity for such a reform has just been clearly shown at our State election.

The plurality of over 85,000 which I received on electoral issues indicated unmistakably and overwhelmingly the will of the people.

Moreover, in the total popular vote for the lower House of our Legislature a plurality of over 58,000 was registered against the return of our senior Senator to the United States Senate.

Yet, owing to our gerrymandered districts, we have to-day a small Republican majority in the Legislature, when an honest division of the State into districts would have shown a Democratic majority; and we are confronted with the possibility of returning to the Senate of the United States a man whose retirement the people have so clearly demanded.

In view of these facts and figures, I confidently expect that this Legislature will have the courage to obey the manifest will of the people, and elect a Senator, irrespective of party, who represents the progressive platform for which the majority of the people voted.

No matter how insistent you approach this present problem, this evil of false representation will always confront us until we attack it at its root.

METHODS NOW ANTIQUATED.

Our methods are not in accord with the new order of things, and I respectfully recommend that in the redistricting of the State no consideration whatever shall be given to party interests, but that every district shall be laid out on geographical lines by the State engineers.

I recommend that the districts of the House so far as possible shall conform to parallels of latitude and longitude; and that each district must possess as nearly as possible equal population, and hence be rendered as compact as this attribution of population will permit.

In spite of the unfitness of the initiative, the referendum and the recall are already at hand. They represent popular government in its highest conception. We who know the town meeting should appreciate the value of the principle when it is proposed to extend it to the State; it is democratic to the core.

The intelligence of the people, of the press and of legislators will be heightened by the study of specific measures; better men will enter public life; class legislation will be discredited by the united vote of all classes; the farmers and laboring men will secure the full measure of their influence in public affairs; corruption will be removed upon needed reforms, and respect for law will be increased; and every statute represents the will of a majority of the people; the ignorant and indifferent will have less weight in such decisions, and the people can exercise their intelligence better in voting for certain measures than for uncertain men.

The day of success is often the most critical in the history of men as well as of parties; and at this moment it is self-evident that the people of this State have given us their confidence and entrusted us with their interests, it becomes our duty to study the motives which have actuated them.

It is undoubtedly true that to a great extent the election this year has been a protest against Republican misgovernment and the failure of that party to redeem its pledges to honesty, economy and tariff, and in so doing to remove the burdens of unequal taxation from the masses of the people.

DEMAND FOR MATERIAL.

To my mind, the basis of the popular verdict is as plain as if it were written in unmistakable words: the people demand that the duties shall be removed from all food products, that raw materials shall be placed on the free list, and that substantial reductions shall be made in the duties on manufactured products; that the Federal government shall take steps looking toward better trade relations with our neighbor Canada, and that as a proof of our earnestness we shall reduce our duties to a level with those of Canada, and then seek further reciprocal trade relations not only with her but with other countries as the wisest and most effective method of securing wider markets for our products.

They also demand that Massachusetts shall take her place alongside of other States in adding the Federal government in levying an income tax, that the burden of taxation may fall more evenly upon the wealth of the country, where they justly belong.

LIFT TAXES FROM FOODS.

This wise legislation will assist in securing the necessary revenue, with the support of the general government, and permit the burdens of taxation to be lifted from food products and the necessities of life, in order to reduce the cost of living to the masses, but to the people.

To this end I strongly urge you to ratify the Federal income tax amendment, and memorialize Congress to submit the inheritance tax just enumerated.

Massachusetts has a great history and proud traditions. It rests with us to see that she shall not degenerate and a new future. She has always led in industrial, commercial and manufacturing lines, and exercised great weight in the councils of the nation. She must lead in the progressive legislation which the people are now demanding.

We must see to it that Massachusetts is in the forefront, and that the voice of her people is still potent in the councils of the nation.

BRILLIANT THRONG AT FOSS INAUGURAL

at 11.30. He was accompanied by his brother, Congressman Foss of Illinois, and Gardner Pearson, the new Adjutant General. He was at once to the executive chamber, where he was first greeted by John R. Thayer of Worcester, and then by Governor Draper.

Mrs. Foss sat in the front centre of the Speaker's gallery. On either side of her sat her twin daughters, Helen and Esther. About them were seated two score of women friends.

At 12 o'clock the members of the Senate filed into the House chamber, and Senator Walker relinquished the gavel to President Treadway of the Senate.

Foss Enters at 12:14.

At 12:06 the justices of the Supreme and Superior Courts filed into the chamber, and everyone arose as they came in. They were escorted to the front of the chamber and given seats in front and to the left of the rostrum.

At 12:08 the father and brother of the Governor-elect were escorted into the chamber. They were seated to the right and front of the speaker.

At 12:10 the committee which had notified the Governor-elect and the Lieutenant-Governor-elect that the two bodies were ready to administer the oath reported that both officials were ready to receive it.

At 12:14 Governor-elect Foss and Lieutenant-Governor Frothingham entered the chamber. They were followed by the members of the Governor's Council-elect and escorted by the members of Governor Draper's staff. Mr. Foss took a seat at the left of President Treadway and Mr. Frothingham one on the right.

His brother, Hayes Fitzgerald and John R. Thayer, followed by fifty prominent men, entered the chamber. This party comprised the guests.

Vahey is Cheered.

James H. Vahey entered the hall next alone. He had some difficulty in getting a seat. He was cheered.

The convention was called to order by President Treadway at 12:23. He then administered the oath to Governor Foss. A minute later Foss signed the written oath. President Treadway proclaimed him Governor, and Secretary Olin also proclaimed him Governor. At this point attention on Boston Common boomed forth, indicating that a new Governor had been proclaimed.

At 12:34 President Treadway administered the oath of office to Lieutenant-Governor Frothingham. A few minutes later he was proclaimed the new Lieutenant-Governor.

At 12:40 o'clock Governor Foss began reading his inaugural speech.

The Guests.

Among the guests at the inaugural ceremonies were Sir Richard and Lady Bowen, Canadian Minister of Militia; Sir Edward Morris, Premier of Newfoundland; George E. Foss, jr., and Mrs. Foss, Mr. and Mrs. George E. Foss, sr., Mayor Fitzgerald, Mrs. Fitzgerald and daughter; Joseph B. Osgood of Salem, a member of the House of Representatives sixty years ago; William H. Lincoln of the Boston Chamber of Commerce; Past Commander J. DeWolfe of the G. A. R.; former Representative Walter L. Sweetser of Lynn, Michael F. Phelan of Lynn; General Samuel Mansfield, U. S. A. retired; former Representative Edward H. O'Hara of Worcester; Mayor Charles Ashley of New Bedford; E. Gerry Brown of Brockton; General Benjamin F. Peixotto, Richard H. Long; R. S. Higgins of Lynn; Daniel O'Connor of Worcester; Charles F. CHILDREN'S HOSPITAL PLANS DISCUSSION

Meetings are to be held to-morrow to consider the future of tuberculosis hospitals for children. One will be held at the Souls' Church in Roxbury and another at the rooms of the 1915 committee, where Dr. Cabot will lead the discussion. Interest is insured by the fact that a majority of the directors of the hospital school at Franklin Field have voted to close the school which has been running for two years and contains 100 pupil-inmates.

WINCH MEN TO FEAST.

The annual banquet of the Winch Brothers Company Employes' Benefit Association will be held in the Quincy House to-morrow night. The business meeting of the association will take place at the same time. The Winch Brothers Company are wholesalers of boots, shoes and rubbers at Nos. 550 to 590 Atlantic avenue.

WORST COLD BROKEN AND GRIPPE MISERY RELIEVED IN FEW HOURS.

Pape's Cold Compound is the result of three years' research at a cost of more than fifty thousand dollars, and contains no quinine, which we have conclusively demonstrated is not effective in the treatment of colds or grippe.

It is a positive fact that a dose of Pape's Cold Compound, taken every two hours until three consecutive doses are taken, will end the Grippe and break up the most severe cold, either in the head, chest, back, stomach, limbs or any part of the body.

It promptly relieves the most miserable neuralgia pains, headache, dullness, head and nose stuffed up, feverishness, sneezing, sore throat, running of the nose, mucous catarrhal discharges, soreness, stiffness and rheumatic twinges.

Take this harmless Compound as directed, with the knowledge that there is no other medicine made anywhere else in the world which will cure your cold or end Grippe misery as promptly and without any other assistance or bad after-effects, as a 25-cent package of Pape's Cold Compound, which any druggist in the world can supply.

Gov. Foss Demands Direct Nomination of Senators

I also recommend that legislation be enacted calling for the popular nomination of United States Senators. Twenty-nine Legislatures have now passed resolutions to this end.

Owing to our gerrymandered districts, we have to-day a small Republican majority in the Legislature, when an honest division of the State into districts would have shown a Democratic majority; and we are confronted with the possibility of returning to the Senate of the United States a man whose retirement the people clearly demanded.—From Governor Foss's inaugural address.

SUPERB CAST HEARD IN LUCIA

THE CAST

Edgar ..... Florencio Constantino
Henry Ashton ..... Giuseppe Palese (debut)
Norman ..... C. Stevens
Raimond ..... Giovanni Polese
Arthur ..... Ernesto Giacomo
Lucia ..... Lydia Lipkowska
Alice ..... Bahr Scotti

By FREDERICK JOHNS.

One of the most annoying features of grand opera to the lovers of modern music drama is the persistency of Lucia di Lammermoor. Lucia has been tried, condemned and executed, but it has as many lives as a cat and bobs up serenely in the midst of modern tone paintings and music dramas and never fails to get welcome from those who pay their way to the opera.

"Lucia" was given last night with a superb cast. Lydia Lipkowska is one of the few high soprano voices of the day who are acceptable in this role. The requirements upon Lucia are enormous in these days of heavily accented prima donna singing.

Constantina is wonderful in this opera. It is one of his greatest parts, and seldom has Henry Ashton been better cast in Boston than by Polese.

There was a large and enthusiastic audience. There is a public which submits patiently to modern music dramas, but revels in the old-time singing feats when tenor and soprano turn vocal somersaults and sopranos display their sweet singing.

Lydia Lipkowska is a perfect Lucia to hear. She is comical to the eye because she occupies so many feet of stage room, and does not possess the amazing organ of Tetrazzini which enables her to imitate a flute so that one cannot tell which is flute and which voice, but she has a very pretty voice, exquisite in quality, pure and sweet and clear as a bell. To the eye she is a treat, a vision of beauty. Nothing more pathetically lovely can be imagined than her appearance in the mad scene. And she sings that familiar music with a vocal skill that is satisfying.

Constantino as Edgar was entirely at ease. The grace and authority with which he dominates the famous sextet, and the thrilling splendor of his voice in the churchyard scene is not quickly forgotten.

Polese sang the music of Henry Ashton exceedingly well, but was not required to do much of it. Under Mouranzi's direction the orchestra played with a sparkle and fresh tone that was pleasing and the chorus sang with spirit.

NEW TRAVELOGUES BY BURTON HOLMES

Burton Holmes is soon to be heard in this city in an interesting series of travelogues at Tremont Temple. The key note of the series to be presented is a novelty, alike in subjects and in method of acquiring the material. While Summer Mr. Holmes and his motion picture expert and fellow traveler, Guy Price Lincoln, have bought a motor abroad and made almost the entire tour in search of the quaint, the picturesque and unusual free from the worries of time tables, timing of railway porters and the scramble for compartments in continental trains. As his first topic this season, Burton Holmes leaves from Munich and the neighboring scenic district of the Bavarian lakes and highlands a remarkable picture record of his travels in this land of beauty and romance. Mr. Holmes will give two parallel courses at Tremont Temple Friday evenings and on Saturday afternoons, beginning next week, January 13 and 14.

SAN FRANCISCO PUTS UP $1,000,000 BOND

WASHINGTON, Jan. 5.—Armed with an indemnity bond of a million dollars when guaranteed the Federal Government that it will not be called upon for an appropriation in the event San Francisco is designated as the point at which the Panama Exposition is to be held, R. B. Hale of San Francisco arrived in Washington to-day. Several precautions the final meeting between New Orleans representing the New Orleans and San Francisco delegations, the New West in their struggle for government recognition.

FEAR COLLAPSE OF TOBACCO MARKET

LEXINGTON, Ky., Jan. 5.—In fear of a total collapse of the tobacco market because of enormous unsold surpluses from the crops of the last two years delegates representing a hundred thousand growers of white burley tobacco in Kentucky, Ohio, West Virginia, Indiana and Missouri met here to-day prepared to restrict next year's big tobacco crops in 1911. It was stated that more than 500,000,000 pounds of the 1909 crop and 200,000,000 pounds of the 191 crop are still on hand.

FEAR BLIZZARD MAY HIT BOSTON

The cold wave which struck Boston came from the extreme northwest and has spread all over the United States, even invading the Sunny South. Freezing weather is reported in Florida, and the orange crop may suffer.

Although Weather Forecaster Smith says there will be clear and cold in this city and vicinity to-day and to-morrow, long-range reports from Northern New York give rise to fears that a blizzard is coming.

THE YELLOW PERIL.

Come burning up your native grass,
Ye chrysanthemum of the big brassie island.
Come, partake with us nice raisins
Some big perishing time.
Grin, bingy, war is closer at hand
And Hobson stands maligned for you.
To arms—the famed jiu jitsu land
Is soon to bring its spittoids o'er.
Hey Honus, Hal, Big Chief and Ty,
Gleat not o'er reputations won,
In that dear old sweet by and bye
Your fightin' days have just begun.
No navy decked with flag and gun
May now protect you with its roar.
The wild jiu jitsu land o'erflows
Is soon to bring its spittoids o'er.
Oh somewhere ships with never a fear,
Roar out their "strike 'im" like a shot,
Or lowsely groan in some star's ear
"Back to the bench and run that run"—
But somehow here of late I've got
An inkling that it ain't to be.
Whenever they hear the jiu jitsu
Is soon to bring its spittoids o'er.

Joe Jeanette and Thom Langford will cross lists at the Armory Club on the 16th, and if there isn't something decisive in the thing we'll refuse to set type on their pair any more. Joe has beaten Thom and Thom has beaten Joe, and at other times the pair have fanned together at the Rubes, too tired to go further.

There are probably no two men in the boxing world who hate one another any more than these two. Joe swears that Thom is the limit, and it goes the other way, too. Dan McKetrick is certain that Joe is the real taffy, as Langford refuses to fight him to a finish.

"I'm certain that Jeanette has this fellow's name," piped Dan last night. "Why, in the last mill at the Armory was the ninth round, I think. Joe walked out of his corner at the gong and deliberately dropped his hands, telling Langford to belt him as hard as he could and to pick the spot.

"Langford looked him over in the stomach and then rolled it up on the jaw, and if Jeanette wavered a bit I'm a liar. Ask Charlie White if it isn't the truth. Charlie was there and had me after the fight that it was the finishest thing he had ever seen in a prize ring.

"Jeanette made him quit once, and, believe me, if ever Langford ever goes on for a finish fight he'll quit another fellow as sure as I'm a foot high."

Alex McLean brought one of his champs uptown the other night to join a box party at a local theatre. The star struck it rich for one act, then, evening himself, said that he had to phone, as he had forgotten a very important message. He beat it, and returned just as the curtain was dropping at the close of the show.

"Where have you been?" asked McLean, brushing his locks back.

"Oh," piped the flapster, "I went to a moving picture show; it's better drama."

"Many are called, but few are chosen." Well, the old Biblical verse seems to come true along the line of local followers of the ponies. The real trouble lies in the fact that we are so many miles away from the real scene of action," said a white thatched veteran. "The track at Jacksonville where the bangtails do their daily trips is covered with a sort of clay formation, which either is baked hard in the sun or becomes a pasty dough in the rain, and ever this insecure footing a slight strain of the tendon or some minor injury brings about a reversal of form in the horses, which we here, around the steam radiators, are quite powerless to account for. Yes, it is a tough time for us in picking the winners, and the rosy days are few and far between."

Jack Johnson and his former manager, George Little, have very nearly patched up their differences, according to a report from Chicago. During the suit for the $1,200 diamond which recently went to the jury, Jack and George left the court room ever and anon to "talk matters over," and close friends of the two now say that Little will manage the affairs of the champion in the future.

The local horsemen are certainly the most disgruntled in the country by reason of the lack of snow. There were never so many crack trotters and pacers owned by amateur drivers in Boston as at present, and a day like this would furnish a simon pure brand of slipping sport, but the little flakes come not, and there is woe in the land.

THE MOST PICTURESQUE WEDDING will be described in detail in the Sunday AMERICAN.

LEWIS SIGNS FOR 10 BOUTS

Ten fights between January 1 and July 1 are want Harry Lewis, the American welterweight star, has contracted for in Paris. This, it appears, was the condition under which Al Lippe took the clever Philadelphia fighter to the other side for the present campaign. The second of his contests will be decided next Monday in London when the little fellow meets a big man in Bandsman Rice, but this match does not affect Lew's contract with the Parisian sports, as it is likely that Lewis may have at least twenty contests when he returns home in the Summer.

Billie McConkey and Marcel Moreau, a French star, meet in Paris tonight, and Lewis gets the winner soon after. Rice is a heavy weight, but is not cashing on the big fellows rather than is idle. Lewis also has agreed to make 122 pounds at the ringside for Johnny Summers, the former English lightweight champion, that he is real welterweight, just as he has claimed to be.

Lippe writes that Lewis also is slated for matches with Ben Sullivan, the new English middleweight champion, and Tom Thomas, the former champion in England. Both Lancaster boys are good and with Battling Dubois the old American negro, in Berlin, seeing that Lewis is kept busy, Lew is would be the busiest of all the fighters in the early part of the new year.

PARSONS SIGNS WITH RUSTLERS

William E. Parsons has sent in his contract to the Rustlers for 1911. Parsons is one of the men in whom Fred Lake has great faith. He is a pitcher, and although not much chance was given him last year, he may develop into something good. At the opening of the 1910 season he was with the New York Giants, and in fact trained with them. Tenney thought too well of him that a trade was made whereby he came to Boston. Fred Lake didn't consider him but ripe enough, and the pitcher was farmed out to Lowell, in the New England League, but was brought back to Boston at the close of the New England League season.

HOLYOKE MAN BUYS SHOW HORSE MARVEL

Arthur T. Cahill of Holyoke has secured in Kentucky one of the greatest saddle horses owned in Massachusetts in years. He is an imported boy gelding, who, soon after he was purchased by Mr. Cahill, was placed in the hands of R. P. Rodmond of Fordham's, New York and who won, after four months' training, every perform, with beautiful execution, the following acts: Side movements to trot, walk and gallop, gaiting changing every two temps, the pistaffe, the passage, the spanish walk, the famous line right point and reverse, and the pirouette on three legs. Mr. Rodmond will be well remembered in Boston horse show patrons at the Brockton Fair. He is one of the cleverest trainers in America.

BOY OF 14 "FINDS" A BASEBALL STAR

Barney Dreyfuss, Pirate owner, gave six players and $2,000 to Kansas City for Fred Hunter, first baseman, on a trip from Lewis Ottenheimer, fourteen, of Baltimore, whose baseball here Hunter was. John Dreyfuss, Barney's son, visited Ottenheimer last Summer and took the youngsters of the latter wanted a first baseman. Jack Ryan, scout for Ottenheimer wrote Dreyfuss about Hunter, a former Baltimore player, and Dreyfuss sent a scout to Kansas City to look over Hunter, and the deal was made in time to keep Detroit from landing him.

BURKE COMMODORE OF THE S. B. Y. C.

John F. Burke was chosen commodore of the South Boston Yacht Club at the annual meeting of the club. The other officers elected were: Vice-commodore, John J. Fahey; rear commodore, Leon T. Allen; secretary, Theodore L. Kelley; treasurer, William X. McKee; measurer, Arthur E. McGeary; fleet surgeon, Dr. Charles R. Bothwell; trustees for three years, James Bertram, William F. Cogan; regatta committee, Thomas J. Sennott, Howard Gannon, John J. Harnaid, Timothy J. Burke, Arthur R. Sewall; house committee, James F. Holland, Alfred D. Lindsay, William A. Hallgren, A. L. Scherer, Charles H. Hoggieman.

HAMILTON AGAIN TO MANAGE HAVERHILL

HAVERHILL, Jan. 5.—Billy Hamilton will manage the Haverhill baseball team next season. While it was expected by local fans that the former manager would return, no definite agreements had been reached until yesterday, when President Clohecy of the Haverhill Baseball Association had a conference in Boston and Hamilton signed the contract. The terms of the contract have not been divulged and it will not be made public until submitted to the directors of the association, but it is generally understood that Hamilton will not be obliged to play unless he wants to.

HARVARD TRACK SQUAD AT WORK

Track work for the Harvard team has begun in earnest and candidates are reporting daily to Coaches Donovan and Quinn, ten soldiers filling the ranks of a board track has been erected. It is planned to enter teams in various indoor meets to be held in this vicinity and possibly at New York.

The first meet that Harvard will enter will be the South Boston A. A. meet to be held in Mechanics Building on January 21.

If the Harvard will undoubtedly enter teams in the 200 and 700 yards relay races, while both relay teams will be found in other events of the latter variety, the 1-mile race, in which two men run alternate to cover the distance. The one mile relay races which Harvard will probably be entered in at this meet will be decided upon later.

Later on the B. A. A. meet will be the centre of interest for Harvard runners, and the big meet held in New York will draw several entries in events. Captain Foster probably being one who will get after honors in the Spring.

ARELLANES TO PLAY WITH SOX

Frank Arellanes, the San Jose wonder, is to be given another trial by the Red Sox.

Arellanes failed to make good last season, but in spite of this President Taylor of the Boston club has confidence in the Mexican, and will give him the chance to "come back."

Arellanes, who last year failed to meet with the requirements set down by Taylor, was sent to the Sacramento club of the Pacific Coast League. Arellanes performed so well on the coast that President Taylor thought there might be something good in him, and as a result determined to take Frank on the Spring training trip.

Larry Pape, who twirled for the Brockton team of the New England League, is still thought to be possessed of more than an ordinary amount of ability, and he, too, will be given a chance to display his skill during the early Spring training trip.

BOXING NEWS AND GOSSIP

Dave Dechler of Cambridge, who met Kid Sutton of Maine at Lee's River last night was around town tonight and says this morning and says further that he considers the reports of his defeat at the hands of the Maine boy foolish. Dechler is ready to step up and go through his paces with Jack McLean, declared that if Silva could do so much for the pounds of his weight, Dechler's star would stop him inside of twelve rounds.

It has been definitely decided that Con O'Kelly and Porky Flynn will meet at Syracuse January 18. Alger and Abearn, at Augusta tonight ought to put up a good bout.

Billy Clark will have to go fast to beat Young McGovern at Lawrence tonight.

Eddie Shaw at Thornton, R. I., to-morrow, Kid Graves.

A bout between Walsh and Stanley would be a hot one here.

A return match between Jeff Madden and Con O'Kelly will probably take place at New Bedford shortly.

Peter Jackson will give Abe Attell a fierce battle in New York January 16.

Tommy Quill and Bob Moha will meet at Mill Haven, N. Y., on Monday night.

Howard Morris and Joe Thomas may meet at Watertown in a short while.

Joe Hyland and Jack Leonard are to box at Waterford, N. Y., Monday night.

Tom O'Rourke is staging an all-star show in New York to-morrow night.

Eddie Keevin is trying to match Jimmie Walsh with Digger Stanley, the English bantam champion, if Stanley defeats Frankie Burns.

COLLINS GETS OFFER TO FLY

Elmer Collins of Lynn, the crack six day rider who is known not only in America but abroad, has received an offer from the Wright brothers to enter their service, and it is almost assured as soon as the cyclist completes his contract with a vaudeville firm he will begin to learn the more dangerous sport.

Ralph Johnstone, the famous Wright flyer, who met death recently, was a great friend of Collins, and just before he began to learn the air game was fulfilling a vaudeville engagement in Lynn, and while there found himself in Collins's company much of the time, and it was then that Collins began to get interested in aeroplanes.

If Collins forsakes the bicycle game, this means the sport loses the best middle distance rider in the business, as Collins has no equal in that line.

A Want Advt. is the road to fortune.

YANKS RELEASE TWO RECRUITS

NEW YORK, Jan. 5.—The New York American League has released Outfielder Chapman and Infielder Priest to the Indianapolis American Association Club, there being optional agreements in the case of each player.

Both Daniels, Cree, Wolter and Hemphill failed to click after the outfield as usual, Manager Chance advised the club officers to send them and elsewhere, so that he could have another look at them indefinitely. Both developed into a finished player.

"I'm letting Mitchell, Foster and Hughes go to Rochester the Highlanders have secured John Gaujot for his square dealing, I'm allowing them to have first call on Collins after Blair. Gaujot took Blair at the request of Stallings, and the young catcher developed remarkably well.

It is probable that the Highlanders will dispose of other young players drafted or purchased by them last season, for Manager Chance believes his team can get along without them.

BIG BOWLING GAMES TONIGHT

By ED COGSWELL.

Local bowlers will have plenty to-night to keep them entertained, as coming outside of the regularly scheduled matches in the many leagues are some important matches.

The leading one will come at the Colonial Club, when the return encounter between the amateurs and professionals takes place in the Boston vs. candlepin circle of game. The opening match was decided several weeks ago at the Boylston alleys.

So wide is the interest in this match that the Colonial Club will be taxed to the utmost in accommodating its members and guests. The committee appointed in receiving visitors have made provisions for ladies, a special section being reserved for them and their escorts.

At the Boylston alleys will be decided a match between the J. B. Reed Company of Lynn and the Delaware Bowling Club, bowling team of Somerville. This is the second meeting between these two, the latter having been at Lynn, when the Delawares were fairly swamped. Since then the Wellesley have added to the strength of their team and feel that to-night will be their opportunity in evening up matters.

Before the Gloucester boys returned home from their match with Hunter's Specials at the Hayward, which made the standing of the teams even up date, each with four points, the deciding match was returned to take place at Gloucester on Tuesday night, January 17.

SAVE THOUSANDS ON BIG LEAGUE TICKETS

CINCINNATI, O., Jan. 8.—If the schedule arranged by its committee is adopted by the National League moguls at the Spring meeting of that organization, thousands of dollars will be saved each club. In the case of the Pittsburg club, the saving of milage alone is amazing. Last year the Pirates traveled 10,000 miles, while next season they will travel but 18,000. The milage of every other National League club has also been cut down considerably.

READVILLE FAIR TO SAVE RACING

After a conference at the Adams House between Isaac Sexton, the Somerville horseman, and W. N. Minton, head of the new syndicate, controlling the famous track beneath the Blue Hills, as the site of a great annual Boston fair, Mr. Sexton issued the following statement to the AMERICAN, endorsing the project, as a means of saving the racing:

By ISAAC SEXTON.

As the result of my conference with W. H. Minton, the new head of the syndicate, taking over the Readville race track, I am more convinced than ever that Boston will have the banner fair of the country; this means the saving of the light harness racing game to Boston.

"I thought that my own ideas of a fair were pretty good, but I must admit that after my conference with Mr. Minton I found his ideas were that I have been regarding as mere suggestions of how the fair should be conducted will preserve the racing game, and I certainly think that he is taking the right step for the project at hand.

"I was surprised to find how thoroughly he has looked the situation. Before Mr. Minton opened negotiations with Andrew J. Welch for the purchase of the Readville track, he visited personally all the living fair grounds of the United States and Canada, including the Panama-Pacific fair, and has the data of all these fairs at his finger ends.

"The Boston Fair will be, not only a tremendous success, Readville park is the most beautiful natural fair ground in the country. It is easily reached, has wonderful rail and trolley and good automobile roads in all directions, and it is in the heart of a densely populated section. There are thousands of people within an hour's ride of the grounds.

"One idea which particularly impressed me was that of having a night show. Thousands who cannot attend during the day will take advantage of this offer.

"Mr. Minton's idea of putting the amusement and convenience of patrons before everything else, should result in success from the very beginning. I predict an attendance of 100,000 persons upon the opening day of the Boston Fair.

"Not only is a great annual fair projected for Boston, but the grounds will be ideal for conventions, picnics, outings, automobile and aeroplane racing, so that I look for Readville Park to be a great benefit to the pleasure-going public of Massachusetts."

CALLAHAN FOR BROWNS?

CHICAGO, Jan. 8.—James J. Callahan, former manager of the Chicago Americans and now owner of the Logan Squares, a City League team, may be selected as manager of the St. Louis American League Club.

PICK CRIMSON TO WIN TITLE

By E. V. B. PARKE.

Re defeating the Springfield Training School, seven by the score of 13 to 0 at the Arena, Harvard comes forward with a rush as one of the strongest possibilities for intercollegiate championship honors in Winter. Although Coach Dillingham's proteges have been playing hockey but little over a week, they have appeared well at times. However, the record of what might happen for the eight men on the ice during the game.

For the next several days Harvard will have its hands full getting down to the game on Saturday with the strong team, which has the reputation of being the fastest college team in Canada, and that means a good deal in a country where hockey players are born and brought up playing hockey, and know all the fine points of the game. Should Harvard come out stronger than usual and Harvard will have to put on the best kind of a game to come off without having her colors lowered.

Desperate Desmond

Desmond swears that if Rosamond persists in her refusal to marry him he will throw to the cannibals, but Rosamond says death in its most horrible form is preferable to a life of conjugal infelicity with such a low-down cur as Desperate Desmond. If a girl handed us a line of talk like that we'd get discouraged.

In the meantime Claude has escaped from the crocodiles and is swimming along the shore, looking for a good place to land. He is keeping his eye on the giraffe and Desmond, and knows where the giraffe goes Desmond will be also. Rosamond can, too. It's a good thing that Claude has occasional gleams of intelligence.

But right here is where our brave hero is up against it. The giraffe is in among the cannibals, and Desmond is with him, as he stands still and holds his neck straight it's distinguish himself and the cannibals, Desmond relies entirely on the fact that Claude Eclaire is on his trail.

The chief occupation of a boa constrictor, so the naturalists tell us, is to twine himself around a palm tree and wait for a giraffe to come along. There is a deadly antipathy between giraffes and boa constrictors, but Desmond has, as yet, been unable to explain. We have a theory of our own, however.

We were just about to explain our views on giraffes versus snakes when the reptile suddenly reached out and grabbed the giraffe by the neck, thereby putting Claude wise to Desmond's whereabouts. So, if you'll pardon us, we'll cut out the explanation for the present. Theories are all very well when there's nothing else doing.

With the cannibals coming at him from one direction and Claude from the other Desmond appears to be exceedingly Dutch. He'll have to be there with the strategy to get out of this scrape, but then strategy is Desmond's long suit. However, let us not anticipate. There will be more pictures to-morrow.

Husband's Sunday

By WINIFRED BLACK

Dear Winifred Blair:

I am very much disappointed in you. I have read the first of your articles, which I did not agree with. It was entitled "Busy Women." Did you ever have a husband? Did you ever have a "Sunday?"

Let me tell you of a case I know of a girl married very young and in less than a year after her marriage went to a town to live where she had neither friends nor relatives. Her husband had friends in this town, who would call him up to go out with them. He went. That was his "Sunday," week after week.

What was here? She was not a nagging wife. She was a musician, so she could entertain him very well, but he never gave her the chance.

This is only one case out of a thousand.

When a man marries he has no right to have "His Sunday." It should be "Our Sunday." He has no right to have pleasures in which she cannot join. He should stop and think of what he has taken away from her and try to make up for it or she will never have a chance to regret. I expect a very sarcastic scoring for this letter, but I can't help it.

"DISAPPOINTED."

WELL, "Disappointed," here's your letter, all in plain print.

How do you like it now, that you see it there?

"He has no right to have pleasure in which you cannot join" sounds reasonable and sane enough, doesn't it—now?

Is that the way you talked to him when you courted the minutes before the post-man could possibly arrive with his letter? If you had talked that way to him, do you suppose there would be any "Our Sunday" in the affair now at all?

No, of course, you told each other all the same deep old fibs—and thought they were true when you were telling them. You were a lovesick girl then, and he was a lovesick lover—aren't you ever going to grow up and be sensible?

He evidently has waked up all right. Are you going to stay asleep all the rest of your life? What do you want to make of your husband, anyway—a spineless jelly?

I know a woman who began just the way you seemed to have begun. Her husband couldn't be with her on holiday trips, so she bought herself a hunting frock of corduroy, put on legs, a sand a sweater and a fur cap—and went hunting with husband.

All the other men in the party were bored to death with her. She's a pretty woman, young and fascinating, but the men didn't want any kind of a woman on the hunting trip. They had to wait for her to catch up, they had to watch to see that her horse didn't stumble in the rough mountain passes, they had to be sure that she wasn't chilled when they got to camp, and they couldn't talk as they liked or dress as they liked or do as they liked one single minute—just because she wasn't going to let husband have any pleasures that she could not join.

She did this sort of thing for two years, and then, when she sprained her ankle and had to be carried nineteen miles on a litter through the deep snow and the bitter cold, she reformed.

So, when her husband goes hunting, she goes home and visits mother and makes new dresses and trims new hats and talks it all over with the other girls. She laughs at herself now whenever she thinks of the time that she froze and starved and shivered and shook for days and nights at a time just so as to be sure that husband "had no pleasure in which she could not join."

How about your teas, and bridge parties, and luncheons, and goodness knows what else? You don't enjoy them, and wouldn't be if you couldn't.

Let him breathe, sister, let him breathe. If you don't you'll smother him entirely, and that won't be anything like a joke, I'm afraid.

Selfish? Of course, he's selfish. All men are selfish, and there is only one way to get along with him.

Be just as selfish as he is—have your own good time and your own friends and your own point of view—and look pleasant about it.

Fashion Notes

FROM all sources investigated comes the announcement that the new Spring lines will show trimmings galore. Although to the present no extreme novelty in trimming has developed, the new lines will, at least, have some braid and cotton trimming.

Ribbons were never more beautiful nor more artistic than they are at present, and there is every evidence that as a result of their daintiness and richness they will be greatly worn. Already ten gowns are being entirely built of lace and ribbon, and gauzy evening cloaks are "poems" composed of the same stuff.

Dull jet or enamel jewelry is invariably worn for deep mourning. Buckles, belt buckles, and long neck chains to lengthen or not, which are about all that is really necessary.

To dress the hair in the new bobbie style one must put it in curlers, and then drape it back from the face in some soft way, and finally bunch it in the back, in a big mass around which is twisted a coil of hair or a band of ribbon.

The Old Maids' Club

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

THE shirtwaist girl turned sharply on the afro bottle whose contents she was deftly extracting with a hat pin.

"Old maids," she began importantly, and every girl in the room moved restlessly in her seat. "Oh, you needn't look so startled. If you are going to be old maids you may just as well get used to the title. Old maids, what are your reasons for being glad you have decided never to marry?"

The brown-eyed girl nibbled thoughtfully at a chocolate cream. "Why," she said slowly, "I suppose, when I said a story to the A——— magazine I had a beautiful sense of independence and I would have snapped my fingers at a prince. I was very haughty in the office, and paused as if in doubt."

"Well," came an expectant chorus.

"This evening Jack telephoned and invited me to dine with him, and then we were to hear 'Madame Butterfly.' I refused, but I don't know that I'm quite so set on quietly, 'do you mean to tell me that you have allowed Tom to speak to you after the affair of last Summer?'

Molly looked quite flushed crimson, then flung up her small chin in defiance.

"You can't expect us to cut the men we've known all our lives, Marian," she exclaimed.

"I don't expect you to cut them, but to hold them at arm's length."

"That's just exactly what I did," said Molly indignantly. A remark which the shirtwaist girl saw fit to ignore.

"Now, Sadie," turning to the rosy pony girl who was busily stirring a savory mess in the chafing dish, "perhaps you, my dear, can give a good reason why you have determined never to marry and waste your wonderful knack of cooking on a mere man."

Sadie tasted her concoction, then carefully added a pinch of pepper.

"No man that I have ever liked has cared much for me, and I'm afraid I'm a dreamy if one did I would marry him, but I couldn't quite make myself do what if I had a nice home of my own, all cosy and——"

"Don't you worry, honey," she added brightly as Sadie's eyes filled with tears. "I'll look for us and the men will come to us and beg for invites to dinner."

Marian looked puzzled. "You are a dear, she said patting the pinky head on her shoulder near her. "Now, Fan, give us your opinion."

The girl addressed turned away from the window and looked at them. "I'm not into the smoky night," she said in a low, tense voice, "because I hate all men. I'm not an old maid," she said heartless. I never want to see another."

The declaration was met with a dead silence even the shirt waist girl had nothing to say.

Fan turned to the window again.

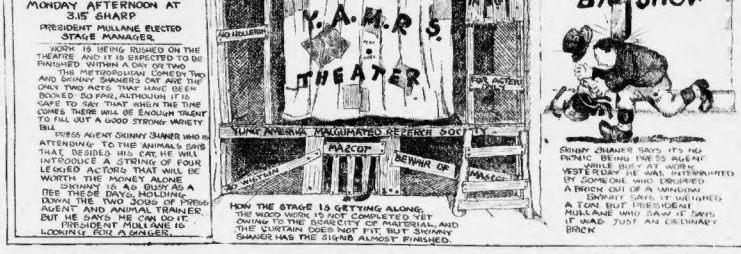
"Never mind me," she said shortly. "Go on with your talk."

"Now, Marian," said Miss Brownegrey, "give us your opinion on being a fine plate. Why do you want to be an old maid?"

"Because I mean to have a career," said the girl in the window seat. "I've got my hand and make something of myself. I'd rather be a career than marry the best man living."

Sympathy rallied the rosy-pony girl, and the old maids' club was formed and ate chicken pajinka and chocolate cake.

"US BOYS"



THE TAMING OF THE JUNGLE

By DR. C. W. DOYLE

Copyright, 1909, by J. B. Lippincott Co.

CHAPTER X.

Caelum, Non Animum Mutant

THE Commissioner of Kumaon had arrived at Kaladoongie in the course of his Winter tour of inspection, and the same evening Joti Prshad, his butler, sat beside the Thanadar on a charpai and smoked with metropolitan ease amidst the awe-struck notables of the jungle village.

Ram Deen alone was not abashed, and puffed his hookah unconcernedly, although Joti Prshad told many wonderful things of the sahibloge, and spoke concerning the doings of the great world of Naini Tal during the greater rains.

Joti Prshad was a small man, and Ram Deen's base mind jumped to the sense of superiority; it was but right that he should snub this exasperatingly cool villager.

"Thanadar ji," he began, "thou and I know that nowhere in Hindoostan is there such greatness assembled as at Naini Tal during the Governor-General visit."

"Men say that the Governor-General still goeth to Simla, but doubtless the sahib knoweth best," said Ram Deen.

"The Lat-sahib, indeed, goeth to Simla, but those with him be mere karnis (clerks), and shopkeepers, and half-caste. 'Tis plain thou has not seen Naini Tal, O conservator."

"The Terai sufficeth me, Joti Prshad."

"They say," piped Goor Dutt, the little bullock driver, "that the Commissioner of Naini Tal bare their shoulders and loosened their garments when he came. Truly, 'tis a thing to be seen."

This being an indisputable fact, and one to which Joti Prshad had never succumbed himself, the latter did not speak, and the silverthin thus made by the bylaws was felt by all to be in Ram Deen's favor.

Taking advantage of the silence of Joti Prshad, Ram Deen began to tell the story of Naini Tal come and go, but the children of the Terai never forget their mother. What sayest thou, Thanadar ji?"

"Truly, my brother," said the Thanadar, with the gravity of one who is in authority and under the stress of weighing his words.

"The Jungle Is Our Father"

As they evidently waited for him to proceed, the Thanadar continued: "The jungle is our father and our mother, and the half-doo trees our near kin, O my brothers; and we who have once seen the beauty of the morning in the jungle, and the rose-fields laughing in the clearings in the Winter, may not live elsewhere."

"Ay, Thanadar ji," said Ram Deen, "all moreover, the senses of those who live in bazaars are asleep as with bhang, and they cannot see nor hear the wonders of God."

A general "humph" of assent followed Ram Deen's speech.

"If the sirdar will stay with us we will show him where he was speak," said the Thanadar. But the butler had fond recollections of Oude and the rose-fields of Shahjahanpore, where he was born, and shook his head dissentingly. So the Thanadar went on: "Many seasons since, a Sunyasi—who had given up his wife and children and lived in a hollow tree by the Rock of Khalsi (whereon are written the laws of the great king Asoka)—returned to Gurrukepore, his native village, when he felt the Great Darkness coming on. He told the village Brahmin that he longed for death, but that he could not die outside of the Terai."

After a pause, during which the bubbling of his hargalli was heard, the Thanadar said: "It is the same with all who are born in the Terai—Parjiad and Rajput, Brahmin and Dome, Sunyasi and fair woman,—all are alike in bondage, and return, sooner or later, to their jungle mother. Likewise, twelve years ago there came to Gurrukepore to hunt big game an Englishman named Fisher Sahib. He was of those favored by God who have much wealth, and to whom sport standeth for occupation. As he was the favored of fate in his heart's desires, he hired two shooting elephants from the Rajah of Rampore—one for himself and the other for his mem-sahib, who accompanied him. And he had a great camp, and many servants, and cooks, and shikaris, chief of whom was Juggoo, whose fame as a hunter reached from Phillibeet to Delimi.

"One day the sahib had shot a deer, and let himself down from his elephant—Juggoo going with him to give it balk, according to the rule of the Koran—for he intended the meat as a gift to the Mussulmanis in his camp. As he bent over the deer to cut its throat with his khookri, a great boar came upon them from a thicket. Juggoo uttered a cry of warning, but ere the sahib could turn the boar was upon them, and Juggoo thrust himself in its way and got his death, or the sahib had been killed.

Fifteen, and a Widow

"So they carried the dead man to the camp, where his daughter, Chumbeli, seeing nobody else coming, awaited the return of her father. She was fifteen years in age, and a widow—for her betrothed husband and all his people had died five years before of The Sickness (small pox); so she had returned to her father, and had cared for him ever since.

And Kali Dass, who was learning Jungle-craft from her father, would have liked to be to mistress. 'Come and live with me, my beloved, beyond the head-waters of the Bora Nuddee,' he had pleaded; 'and when my hair hath grown again some small space, thou art a widow, and the people of the foot-hills shall wonder at thy beauty.'

"But Chumbeli had been a woman, Kali Dass, and the others matter not. Kali Dass' she replied firmly.

"So Kali Dass went his way; and the young man and the maiden saw each other no more together.

"The mem-sahib, when she told Chumbeli of her father's death, Kali Dass standing by, and she turned on him like a tigress and bereft of the young and unbraided hair, saying, 'Hadst thou been a man, Kali Dass, my father were still living.' Thereafter, she swooned, and the mem-sahib laid her head firmly across her lap, and held her in her arms and comforted her, because Juggoo had been her friend and playmate.

"Then, for that she was childless and very wealthy, and could do whatsoever seemed good in her eyes, the mem-sahib took Chumbeli across the Bora Nuddee. They brought her up as their own kin, teaching her whatsoever it is fitting the daughter of a Parjugi should know, and training her to work amongst our women and children when they should be afflicted with sickness; and, furthermore, she was to form them from Sana Debi to the Gol of the Faringis.

Only by Jungle-Craft

"Moreover, to aid her in her work, she was married to a young English gentleman; they came to Kaladoongie six years ago, when the next new-year festival of the Faringis shall arrive. And because we knew her and still remembered Juggoo, her father, we of Kaladoongie waited on her at the dak-bungalow on the day she returned. She came out to us on the verandah, dressed in the garments of a mem-sahib, and we saw that she was a woman grown and a matter of 2,000 of long leagues. She was glad to see us, calling us all by our names, and greeted her wife with such gifts as we could—fruit and flowers and sweetmeats. And she had a little boy-child behind him four men bearing a leopard but lately slain, slung from a pole.

"They told the beast at her feet, and Chumbeli kneeled and clasped her hands till the little padre, her husband, frowned at her; whereon her nostrils inflated and she looked at us in wonderment, as though she saw for the first time that he was a padre with a pale face, and void of authority.

"Then turning to Kali Dass she said in our Terai tongue, 'Is it well with thee, brother ji?' Then addressing him as 'Kali Dass' she repeated, 'Is it well with thee, Kali Dass?' and smiled.

"And he said, 'Nay; I have no spouse, save only my jungle-craft.'

"'And the jungle?' she asked, looking on the ground.

"'It is my father and my mother, and rather than one of its daughters, mem-sahib. But those hast been in great cities, and across the Black Water; thou hast read in books, and hast changed the gods—'

"'I am still a Parjiad,' she explained, 'and I shall get nearer to my people the more I am with them.'

"'It was a time of great stillness when I left the morning was just born, and the dew lay on all things. Taking the rock Nalni Tal, we struck into the jungle when we came to the path that leads to the foot of the Bora Nuddee, and Chumbeli alighted from her pony and walked in front of us with Kali Dass. The palms in flesh showed in the east, and presently a jungle-cock greeted the dawn. Chumbeli stopped, looked at Kali Dass' face, she turned round to the padre sahib, saying, 'Hadst thou been a man, Kali Dass, my father were still living.' Thereafter, she swooned, and the mem-sahib laid her head firmly across her lap, and held her in her arms and comforted her, because Juggoo had been her friend and playmate.

Reducing the Waist Line in Both Sexes

Men and women with heavy, pendulous abdomens who wish to reduce their weight safely and safely are usually advised to go in for certain tiresome sweating and bending exercises, but as a matter of fact they should carefully avoid as being dangerous rather than beneficial.

A far better way is to take the following three simple household remedies, which can be obtained of any druggist at small cost: Fluid Extract Cascara Aromatic and 3½ ozs. Peppermint Water. Shake well and clear; the complexion of pimples and blotches. Its chief and surprising benefit is in the rapid, natural manner in which it reduces the fat person to the normal, beautiful lines of a slender figure. It is now known to cause the reabsorption of as much as a pound of fat a day, and it does this in a way entirely so that no wrinkles or flabby skin are left behind. Massage is not necessary. Get these three simple remedies from your druggist and make up a mixture yourself by pouring into a bottle 3½ ozs. Peppermint Water, then add 1 dram Fluid Extract Cascara Aromatic. Take a teaspoonful after meals and at bedtime.

Those who object to the mixture that is not only perfectly harmless but actually quite beneficial to the system, regulating the digestion, purifying the blood and clearing the complexion of pimples and blotches, its chief and surprising benefit is in the rapid, natural manner in which it reduces the fat person to the normal, beautiful lines of a slender figure. "That's what Tom said," she murmured demurely.

Molly sighed. "I said the hostess indignantly, 'do you mean to tell me that you have allowed Tom to speak to you after the affair of last Summer?'

Molly looked quite flushed crimson, then flung up her small chin in defiance.

Fan turned to the window again.

"Never mind me," she said shortly. "Go on with your talk."

"Because I mean to have a career," said the girl in the window seat. "I've got my hand and make something of myself. I'd rather be a career than marry the best man living."

Sympathy rallied the rosy-pony girl, and the old maids' club was formed and ate chicken pajinka and chocolate cake.

"Why, Fan," said the hostess indignantly, "do you mean to tell me that you have allowed Tom to speak to you after the affair of last Summer?"

Molly looked quite flushed crimson, then flung up her small chin in defiance.

"You can't expect us to cut the men we've known all our lives, Marian," she exclaimed.

"I don't expect you to cut them, but to hold them at arm's length."

"That's just exactly what I did," said Molly indignantly. A remark which the shirtwaist girl saw fit to ignore.

"Now, Sadie," turning to the rosy pony girl who was busily stirring a savory mess in the chafing dish, "perhaps you, my dear, can give a good reason why you have determined never to marry and waste your wonderful knack of cooking on a mere man."

Sadie tasted her concoction, then carefully added a pinch of pepper.

"No man that I have ever liked has cared much for me, and I'm afraid I'm a dreamy if one did I would marry him, but I couldn't quite make myself do what if I had a nice home of my own, all cosy and——"

"Don't you worry, honey," she added brightly as Sadie's eyes filled with tears. "I'll look for us and the men will come to us and beg for invites to dinner."

Marian looked puzzled. "You are a dear, she said patting the pinky head on her shoulder near her. "Now, Fan, give us your opinion."

The girl addressed turned away from the window and looked at them. "I'm not into the smoky night," she said in a low, tense voice, "because I hate all men. I'm not an old maid," she said heartless. I never want to see another."

The declaration was met with a dead silence even the shirt waist girl had nothing to say.

Fan turned to the window again.

"Never mind me," she said shortly. "Go on with your talk."

"Now, Marian," said Miss Brownegrey, "give us your opinion on being a fine plate. Why do you want to be an old maid?"

"Because I mean to have a career," said the girl in the window seat. "I've got my hand and make something of myself. I'd rather be a career than marry the best man living."

Sympathy rallied the rosy-pony girl, and the old maids' club was formed and ate chicken pajinka and chocolate cake.

NEW YORK, Jan. 5.—With Reading, St. Paul and New York Central of the railroad group and Consolidated Gas of the industrials leading the early market in Wall Street today, the market ruled strong and active, with practically the entire general list showing gains ranging from fractions to a point or more.

Reading, in the early trading, moved up three-quarters of a point and later increased this gain to seven-eighths. Trading in the stock was active throughout. Union Pacific moved up to within a fraction of 174, while New York Central, which opened at 111½, crossed 112. Canadian Pacific was another strong factor among the railroad stocks, moving up to 192¼, a gain of 1¾ points over yesterday's closing. Steel common continued active and strong. The copper stocks ruled strong and active. Amalgamated and Utah and Tennessee moving up fractionally.

Trading on the curb was active, with prices ranging fractionally higher. In London, Americans developed heaviness in the late trading and sold off. The copper stocks were exceedingly weak.

TENNESSEE TANGLE OVER LEGISLATURE

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Jan. 5.—The possibility of the State being without a legislature body for two years, with executive affairs administered by a hold-over governor, confronted the people of this city today in January, 1913, was the situation that confronted Tennessee to-day. When the Legislature convened yesterday not a regular appeared to be sworn in, and the Fusionists sent an ultimatum that they will treat with the regulars now only upon the floor of the Legislature. The general opinion which prevailed to-day was that the regulars would leave for their homes without being sworn in.

STATE ST. NEWS FOR INVESTORS

All the indications are that a quick and further response will be made to news of a definitely bullish character, and this is what the bears are afraid of.

$ $ $

Should the world at large accept President Cone's retirement as official proof that affairs will not go any more, a buying movement may set in immediately.

$ $ $

It appears that the present Congress is ready to do some quick work in tariff reform and rout the Democrats of the glory of beginning the good work. As the wool and paper schedules are the two that are created most of the public excitement, the Republicans have their early revision will go a long way toward restoring public confidence.

$ $ $

Whether the time has arrived for investment or not, the stock market, viewed from a speculative angle, is in a very strong position and should have a material rise. Bankers will not say this rise can be maintained, and it will be well for persons buying now to look well to their profits when they materialize.

$ $ $

The railroads have their new securities ready to put out at once, and, while the important bankers do not favor a sudden big rise in the market, they look with favor on continued strength as a basis for these new security issues. Should everything develop as now seems probable, it may be that stocks and bonds generally are at a level where they will be safe investment purchases.

Business Success Through Publicity

Why a Trust Advertises

Even a Trust nowadays finds it pays to advertise. Often it desires to protect itself against smaller competitors or to create a new market by educating more people to the desirability of its goods.

The textile manufacturer for years has looked askance at advertising and believed that it could not help him in the least. Two of the leaders, however, have burst the confining shell of their conservatism and have made a contract for $100,000 to be spent in one year's advertising.

The corporations are the American Woolen Company, of which William M. Wood is president, and the Arlington Mills, of which William Whitman is the head. The American Woolen Company produces 60,000 or more fabrics of different patterns and colors. Often it has happened that after samples of a desirable pattern or shade have been sent out, a smaller mill would at once begin manufacturing, putting in more cotton perhaps than the original cloth contained or duplicating in some way so as to cut the price five or ten cents a yard.

This has affected the original pattern and the American Woolen Company in these ways—by putting out a close imitation, by affecting the quality and by cutting the price.

Now the American Woolen Company, as well as the Arlington Mills, has determined to mark its good, so that this quality cutting and this price cutting cannot affect it, and when it puts out goods with its name the consumer will know that the American Woolen Company's standard is back of the goods and all the fabrics are cheap imitations.

In fact, many manufacturers of textiles are fast realizing that the consumer to-day desires to know the quality of the fabric that it buys at the store. Consumers will buy in greater quantities a known fabric backed by a reputable house than an unknown fabric backed by an unknown house.

The best medium for textile advertising is the medium that the department stores use—the local newspaper of large circulation. In Boston the best medium is the Boston AMERICAN because it is bought by nearly 400,000 people daily. Advertising in it will create a demand in the department stores in Boston for your goods. Look into it, Mr. Manufacturer.

Address the Boston American, Trade Aid Department, for further particulars along these lines.

AMERICAN WANT "ADS" BRING QUICK RESULTS

BIG BUSINESS AT AUTO SHOWS

By J. C. KERRISON.

NEW YORK, Jan. 5.—With the closing days of the two motor shows being held in this city comes an increase in the attendance of both. Makers and dealers from all over the country are coming into town in session to attend the closing days of these exhibits and be present at the opening of the Madison Square show on Saturday evening next. They are interested in all that pertains to the industry, whether or not, it is produced under the Selden license. The business being transacted at the two shows is excellent and unquestionably presages a prosperous year, the demand for cars seemingly being as great at this time as it has ever been in the history of the industry.

Two new exhibits were added to the palace show, they being the Abbott-Detroit building, which has just arrived from the South after covering something like 20,000 miles, and the Abbott-Detroit "Blue Bird," which was driven to the Savannah race. At this booth, where E. P. Blake of Boston, holds forth, are shown no less than seven models of the Abbott.

An excellent car is the coupe, one of the most attractive and stylish in the show. It is a natty looking rig, built on well-defined and long established lines, being equipped with almost any and everything any lady might desire, the selling price is most excellent considering the quality of product. A Stanhope Berghoff stand is shown the car "Backed by Michigan" and handled in Boston by Raymond Ware of Boylston street. Several models are shown in several models and styles of finish and be in every sense an up-to-date motor vehicle.

Waltham Motor Sleigh.

The three-wheeled motorette, if such it can be called, made by the Kelsey company of Hartford, is attracting great attention, but no more so than is the motor sleigh of the Waltham company of Waltham. This sleigh is fitted with a two-cylinder opposed motor in front, the crank shaft of which is fitted with a high propeller, which, when revolved at high speed, draws the sleigh ahead as does the propeller of an aeroplane. It has no gears to shift or change, and the shaft is fixed, speed being attained only by the opening of the throttle. The sleigh is proving a great drawing card.

Over at the importer's show one finds Alfred Morse, the Boston agent for the Renault and S. G. cars, in front of which drive one of the later cars over the road to Boston on Sunday. The car of this exhibit includes a small town car, as well as a coupe, the latter a duplicate of the one which won the Targa Florio race in 1906. The Renault line is one of the most extensive in the show including large and ponderous bodies.

There is here a particularly fine specimen of enclosed body. It is one of the most complete and appealing cars in the show. The roof of the body has been raised with window in side, while the upper rear of the body contains compartment for the carrying of all kinds of refreshments. There are other convenient[illegible] as in evidence, in that are seldom to be found in motor cars.

EDITORIAL PAGE OF THE BOSTON AMERICAN BOSTON, JANUARY 5, 1911

BOSTON AMERICAN

60 AND 62 SUMMER ST., BOSTON, JANUARY 5, 1911

Governor Foss's Message to the People of Massachusetts and—THE NATION

The AMERICAN publishes verbatim the message of Governor Foss, delivered to-day to the members of the General Court, and through them to the people of Massachusetts.

But it is more than a message of hope to Massachusetts alone. It might well be addressed to the people of the entire nation.

For every evil in Boston and Massachusetts that Governor Foss so clearly points out is just as sharply defined in every other American city and State.

We urge our readers to study this message carefully. It is bold, courageous, manly.

Compare it with the tearful plea for mercy by Senator Lodge, and then say which man represents "the Interests" and which the people.

It is a remarkable document. It is a trumpet call to citizens to do their duty—to themselves.

Governor Foss leads the way in greatly needed reforms. He notifies the big and little grafters—the possessors of ill-gotten money filched from the public—that law is no longer for barter and sale; that there must be an end to corrupt practices, and that special privileges can no longer be obtained through favoritism of venal bosses.

It points the way to real progressive legislation and rule by THE PEOPLE.

It is a notification to the hucksters of all parties that they MUST CEASE their thievish activities.

It is a warning to bribe givers and bribe takers that legislation on Beacon Hill is no longer to be bought, and sold to the highest bidder

It is a plea for the widest PUBLICITY in State and municipal affairs.

And finally it clearly sets forth to the people themselves THAT THEY are the real rulers of city and State, and that they, the people, will be responsible for future misgovernment, if they allow the bosses to sell them as so many cattle to greedy and corrupt corporations.

Has Your Child a Sore Throat? Don't Neglect It

Copyright, 1910, by American Journal-Examiner

Every intelligent doctor will tell you that a sore throat of any kind—especially in a child—is a dangerous thing.

Diphtheria, which used to kill nearly ALWAYS, and which now, thanks to antitoxin, kills only when neglected, begins invariably with a sore throat.

Never neglect a sore throat in your child; find out EXACTLY what the matter is. If you haven't a doctor of your own—A GOOD ONE—go to the Health Department. Any policeman can tell you where you should take your child to be examined at the city's expense.

The discovery of antitoxin, which cures diphtheria almost invariably, is one of the greatest discoveries of the age. But too long neglect makes even the great remedy useless. We quote to you here some brief statements in a bulletin issued for the parents of school children by the Department of Health in Chicago, over which Dr. Evans presides most ably:

DIPHTHERIA POINTERS.

* * *

Delays in diphtheria mean death.

* * *

Antitoxin cures—it also prevents.

* * *

Spare the cure—kill the child.

* * *

Neglect is diphtheria's best friend—antitoxin its worst enemy.

* * *

Diphtheria works while you sleep.

* * *

Get away from that manana habit; get the do-it-now habit—especially in the presence of diphtheria.

* * *

What some thrifty (?) people keep from the doctor they give to the undertaker.

* * *

Poverty deprives no child of the necessary care and treatment for diphtheria. The poor can get as good treatment as the rich.

* * *

Antitoxin is free and medical attention can be had free—but funerals cost lots of money.

* * *

We wonder how many parents realize the part they have played in their baby's death—especially in cases of diphtheria.

* * *

NEGLECT OF SIMPLE SORE THROATS SIMPLY MEANS MANY A JOB FOR THE UNDERTAKER.

* * *

Most children who spread diphtheria are not sick.

Hearing Voices

By JAMES J. MONTAGUE

J. G. Robin's sister says concerning the recent New York bank crash that he heard and obeyed voices which bade him do strange things.

DON'T blame the helpless burglar man who ties you to your bed
And tells you if you move or yell he'll fill you full of lead;
He'd rather not remove your cash, it grieves him to the heart
To gather up your silverware and jewels and depart,
But everywhere he goes he hears the mandatory gurgle
Of vibrant voices in the air that bid him go and burgle.

Speak softly to the subway guard who shuts a door on you
And sighs with disappointment when you're not cut quite in two;
His heart is full of sympathy, and if he had his way,
Instead of maiming you for life he'd give you all his pay,
But in his ears he always hears the racket and the roar
Of voices crying "Take that man and shut him in the door."

When Captain Kidd sailed o'er the seas, he never meant to skeer
The simple, guileless Spaniards, like a bold, bad buccaneer;
The galleons that fled away whenever he pursued
He only meant to give supplies of extra men and food.
But voices sounded in his ear, and in obedience he
Robbed all the vessels he could find and sank them in the sea.

Value of a Man's Time

By THOMAS TAPPER

THIS is what the Boss said to the Men:

If a man works eight hours for $2, his time has a market value—that is, a value to the market he takes it to—of 25 cents an hour. The rest of the day, or sixteen hours, is his to spend in sleep, in eating and in rest. If he takes ten hours for sleep and two for meals, he has four hours left. The value of these four hours, on the basis of his wages, is $1.

Can he get this extra dollar.

You think he can get it only by working overtime at the same rate. Now, regular overtime work of four hours per day is impossible as a continuous performance; and even if it were possible a man should not try to earn more money that way, because there is a better way.

If this extra dollar is not to be had by overtime work at the regular rate, am I wrong in saying that the four hours of leisure have the value of another dollar?

Grades of Ability

To answer this question as well as I can, is the reason I have called you together. As you all know, we employ several hundreds of men to carry on this business. They grade from the general manager down to the day laborer.

The general manager is elected to his job because his knowledge and experience are such that he can watch every department of work we do here; he knows how to make the work produce what we can sell, and how we can sell what we produce at a profit.

If he could not do these things he would not be here ten minutes. We couldn't afford to keep him. In brief, the weight of the entire business is on his shoulders, and his shoulders are strong enough to bear the load.

On the other hand, you men who are working for us by the day find your work all laid out for you; the tools to do it with are ready at hand. You have only to come here on time, pick up the tools that lie ready for you, and follow directions. And yet, as you all know, even work of this kind can be done well by one man and badly by another.

Keep this fact in mind for a few moments.

Now, between the general manager and the laborer there are many grades of jobs. How do they differ? You will probably say, "in the pay." But that is not wholly correct. The jobs differ in the amount of responsibility they carry.

When we find a man who can fill a place which requires some degree of responsibility, we do not offer him the pay of a less skillful man. We pay him in accordance with the value of what he shows us he can do.

I do not need to explain to you why one man has to use a pick and shovel all day for $2, or why another has what you often call a soft snap, at $4. I do not need to tell you that this business, or any other business, is not run on a system of favoritism and good pay to those of whom we sometimes hear it said, "get next to the boss." I want you to believe that we pay for value received, so far as we are able to control it.

No business man in the world, or no body of business men, is infallible in judgment. The result of this is that sometimes a man is put in a responsible place at good pay, who proves unfitted for it. We sometimes make that mistake. But we do not so on making it. As soon as we know that a man draws more pay than he earns, we look for a man who is worthy that amount of money.

The "Thinking" Difference

I asked you a moment ago to keep in mind the fact that, even in the ranks of ordinary day labor, one man will do his work better than another. This fact has taught us, as business men and employers of other men, that workmen differ from one another only in one particular. I call that particular the thinking difference. The moment a man thinks about his work he is no longer a day laborer.

He is a day laborer with a chance coming his way. Let him think hard enough and long enough, and he will think himself into a better place. So long as he lives and thinks hard about what he does, so long he will continue to advance, for he is putting more into his work all the time. The advancement he wins is his sacred right, and nothing can keep it from him.

You can take my word for it that we are ever on the lookout among men for the thinkers; for the man that uses his shovel, his hands and his head in a way which shows that he thinks before he acts. Once we find that kind of a man he is marked for better work. We are glad to give it to him; he is capable, and it is capability and nothing else that helps business.

More Than Face Value

Now let us get back to those four hours of time which I valued at an extra dollar a day. Any man who works eight hours a day and has four hours left to think about himself and his work, has a chance that is worth far more than a dollar. He can, if he will, actually think himself into Independence. But it is a long way from two dollars a day to independence, and the thinking man must be patient and win his way step by step.

If such a man makes up his mind to do his work in the very best way he can, to study the job he is on, to watch better workers than himself, to get on to how they do their work, no power in the world can keep him at the foot of the ladder.

He is just as bound to rise as mercury in a thermometer is on a warm day. If we overlook his ability, somebody else will see it and hire him away from us; or he will become convinced of his greater value and find a better place for himself.

The Job Above

Therefore these four hours are worth not only a dollar to a man, provided he be a thinker, they are worth a fortune to him. He ought to prize them as the best part of his day. No man was ever connected with a business who could not see a better job above him.

Let him study that job; let him keep his eyes on it; let him keep his mind on it, and some day he will get a chance to try it. While he is working below let him think of the better place and try for it.

Regular sleep, simple food, a fair day's work and a golden margin of a few hours for thought—with these the humblest of you can in time give any man "a run for his money."

Don't spend your time looking for a better job until you have spent a lot of time getting ready for it by hard work and hard thinking.

The Red Corpuscle

By WEX JONES

ONE of our readers writes to complain of the lack of action in the ordinary schoolbook. "It is a shame," he says, "that the child, being fond of any kind of action, should have to spend its time saying 'c-a-t, cat.' Would it not be possible to release a large cat in the schoolroom as the word is being spelled? The resultant scramble, in addition to impressing the word upon the children, would amuse them and relieve the monotony of study."

Our correspondent's suggestion might be considered by the school boards of the country, although we fear the execution thereof would present considerable difficulties, especially as the children progressed to words as elephant, giraffe, cobra and so forth. Besides, there are a number of words such as hoop, gratitude, science, which would be difficult to translate into action. No; better let the young mind grapple with dry lessons. After all, they are a means to the end of reading the Red Corpuscle.

A trifling knowledge of geography enables our readers to appreciate the skill and correct local color by our authors in making the hero of an Alaska story complain of cold, while the hero who paddles up the Congo talks about the heat. Thus we see that even education has its uses.

WEDDED AND PARTED.

Showing that even in a domestic drama there may be plenty of action.

They had been married two years. It seemed like ten to both of them.

When Jack Rhelnwein had led Alice to the altar everything had been gay.

This morning at breakfast Jack had been peevish. He had thrown a dish of ham and eggs out of the window. Although one would think this would tend to prevent the monotony so often complained of by married people, Alice was displeased and indicated her feelings by pouring all the coffee over the table.

Jack arose and put on his coat. On his way out he merely paused to smash the mirror in the hall.

When he returned that evening he found that all the furniture had been removed in his absence. His wife had taken it to her mother's.

Jack hastened to his mother-in-law's

He knocked loudly upon the door and demanded his furniture

A mocking "Ha, ha!" was his only answer.

H. O. T. Teddy, a new author, tells a thrilling tale of mystery.

I.

James Dill was feeling uneasy.

He had just finished drinking a cup of hot milk, his only dissipation.

Another man would have gone to bed and said: "Guess I'll feel better in the morning."

But James Dill was not an ordinary man. He was president of a bank.

He telephoned for a doctor, and when the [illegible]—A cunning touch by Mr. Teddy.—Eds.] arrived he demanded suddenly, "Why don't I feel all right?"

The physician was baffled.

Neither he nor Dill thought of the cup of milk.

A cruel eye observed this through the keyhole.

II.

Ten years later James Dill died.

The attending physician filled in the cause of death as senile decay.

But what of that cup of milk?

Was it doped?

Who knows?
